Paterson's Win Decisive

Goldberg Scores Narrow Victory

A JUBILANT GOLDBERG AND A HAPPY PATERSON
(UPI Telephoto)

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Arthur J. Goldberg emerged today from a too-close-for-comfort primary battle as the Democratic nominee for governor, while the party leaders who backed him sighed in relief.

The former Supreme Court justice's victory over millionaire Howard J. Samuels was offset somewhat by U.S. Rep. Richard L. Ottinger's triumph in the four-way race for the U.S. Senate nomination.

Ottinger's victory was all the more embarrassing because the leaders' choice, former White House aide Theodore C. Sorensen, finished third — behind another insurgent, Paul O'Dwyer and barely ahead of underdog U.S. Rep. Richard Max McCarthy.

But the organization succeeded easily in putting over State Sen. Basil A. Paterson as the first black nominee for lieutenant governor. And their choice for the attorney general's post, Adam Walinsky, also pranced into the winner's circle.

Samuels, 50, a hard-nosed campaigner from upstate Canandaigua, put up a much stronger struggle than the party pros had expected, clinging close to the 61-year-old Goldberg's heels far into the vote counting on the strength of upstate support.

Ulster County Democrats went against the state pattern in Tuesday's Primary by selecting Howard Samuels for governor and Robert Meehan for attorney general . . . Story Page 3.

But Samuels' upstate lead was not as wide as he had anticipated and, in the end, he succumbed to the New York City preference for Goldberg—just as the city's Democratic leaders had said he would.

Latest unofficial returns, from 13,161 of the state's 13,735 election districts, gave Goldberg 49,006 votes and Samuels 445,578.

Although Goldberg's margin was decisive, Samuels said he would not concede until the entire vote was in.

As had been expected, only about a quarter of the state's 3.5 million enrolled Democrats bothered to go to the polls.

In other phases of the primary:

— Anti-war candidates found slim pickings in the congressional primary, failing to oust such incumbents as Democrats Samuel Stratton in the Albany-Schenectady area, James Hanley in Syracuse, Thaddeus Dulski in Buffalo and John J. Rooney in Brooklyn.

Goldberg, making his first try for elective office, will face Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in the November election, while Ottinger will go against Republican Sen. Charles E. Goodell.

Rockefeller, seeking a fourth term, and other members of the Republican state ticket were not involved in the primary. They had been nominated by the GOP State Committee without opposition.

In casting his vote in local primary election Tuesday, Rockefeller said confidently that he was prepared to take on anybody.

Goldberg and Paterson also have the nominations of the splinter Liberal party, which could be worth an additional 500,000 votes. So does Goodell, which will make Ottinger's task more formidable.

Goodell and Ottinger, both outspoken opponents of the Indo-China war, will find themselves under attack by the Conservative party's nominee, James L. Buckley, who polled a million votes in the last Senate race.

Buckley, a brother of columnist William F. Buckley, already has begun to register as an attractive alternative to voters in a rally-round-the-flag mood.

Goldberg, who also served as secretary of labor and ambassador to the United Nations, had been reluctant to enter the political arena, but said he allowed himself to be persuaded that he could unite New York's bedraggled Democratic party.

The various big-city bosses who rule the party apparatus has suffered a series of stunning election setbacks in recent years and had seized upon Goldberg's "big name" as the device to rescue them from the

Winner Was Ignored by Party Chiefs

Voters Got to Know Ottinger

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — U.S. Rep. Richard Ottinger, the emphatic winner of the crowded primary for the Democratic senatorial nomination, had been ignored by party leaders and was unknown to many voters a few months ago when he announced his bid for the office.

A highly financed campaign with emphasis on television and radio advertising overcame these handicaps, however, and Democratic voters Tuesday made Ottinger their choice to face incumbent Republican Sen. Charles E. Goodell.

Actually, Ottinger's heavy campaign spending was the only real issue of the lackluster campaign. The three other candidates agreed with Ottinger and each other on mos. other issues.

Ottinger already has reported that he spent almost a half million dollars in the early weeks of the campaign — nearly five times the combined amount of his opponents.

They charged that his final spending figure, which will be filed in the near future, will show an outlay of almost $1 million.

Ottinger shrugged off the criticism, offering as defense the campaigns of Gov. Rockefeller and New York City John V. Lindsay.

In the end, it was a two-man race between Ottinger and former New York City councilman Paul O'Dwyer, a veteran champion of liberal causes who retains a powerful appeal for New York City voters.

Theodore Sorensen, the choice of the Democratic State Committee for the job, trailed a distant third after capturing only a few small counties. U.S. Rep. Richard Max McCarthy won in his home Erie County, but almost nowhere else.

Ottinger forged his victory by posting a 2-1 margin over O'Dwyer in upstate areas and by remaining close to O'Dwyer in New York City.

The 41-year-old congressman, heir to a plywood fortune, got on the ballot after circulating nominating petitions among most of the counties in the state.

Ottinger was elected to Congress in 1964 by a district in which enrolled Republicans are in the majority. He was returned to Congress in subsequent elections after becoming known for his stand against corporate polluters and for conservation.

He and his wife and four children live in Mount Pleasant.

Before hundreds of cheering supporters, most of them young, Ottinger promised to carry on with a "tough campaign" in his effort to unseat Sen. Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y.

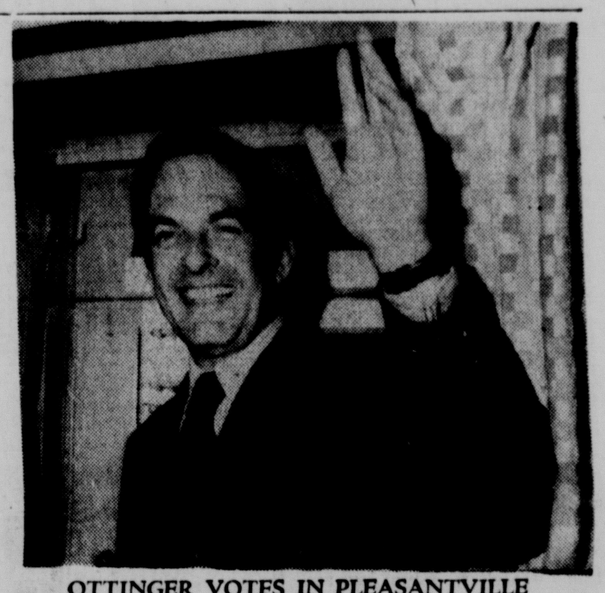

"We've won a unique mandate. We've won as independents," Ottinger said, "beholden to no one." He claimed the victory placed him in a strong position, with both New York City and upstate voters, "to unite the party and win in November."

In news program-type television commercials during his million dollar campaign, the U.S. Plywood heir drummed across his record against pollution, utilities and the war.

Ottinger appeared to greet his supporters in the Terrace Room of the Roosevelt Hotel after hundreds of them had waited for nearly four hours.

During the wait, the predominantly youthful crowd displayed a confident mood, with the gathering frequently taking on the air of a party. Many of the young supporters dressed in mod, and some in hippie clothes.

Campaign aides, including Ottinger's manager, Stephen Berger, said that although young, they had played a major part in the congressman's victory.

Powell Loses to Ex-Aide

Adam Dethroned in Tight Harlem Race

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Flamboyant Rev. Adam Clayton Powell, self-assured "king of Harlem," was defeated by his one-time supporter Assemblyman Charles B. Rangel in Tuesday's Democratic congressional primary and a woman gained the only victory among anti-war candidates.

Powell, forever poised despite a lately turbulent career, lost narrowly to Rangel, who had support of New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, reform Democrats and the Republican party.

Mrs. Bella Abzug, woman's rightist, lawyer and peace activist, defeated Rep. Leonard Farbstein of Manhattan in the only upset among five contests where the Indochina war was a paramount issue. Incumbents were the victors in contests as well.

The 61-year-old Powell, who had reigned as "king of Harlem" for 25 years, lost by 205 votes, according to unofficial returns. He polled 7,599 to Rangel's 7,804.

Powell had an evangelical flair to his speeches. And he was the picture of elan and composure throughout his tenure despite a recent bout with cancer and stormy career of late. He won elections with ease until he was excluded from the House for alleged misuse of funds two years ago. He fought the case to the Supreme Court and won back his seat.

Rangel, 40, a first-term assemblyman from the 72nd assembly district, is a former supporter of Powell, but recently remarked: "He did a great job in the past but now it's time for someone else to take over."

Mrs. Abzug, an aggressive woman in her mid-forties, dealt a stunning blow to the political career of Farbstein, who has held office since 1962 in the 19th congressional district.

She contended that Farbstein's approach was "irrelevant" to the needs of the district and said at one point:

"We're in a crisis period and we've got to get out there and raise holy hell. Congress has got to reverse the militarization of our society."

In another contest, veteran Brooklyn Democrat John J. Rooney delivered defeat to the political aspirations of peace candidate Peter Eikenberry, 36, a student-supported New York lawyer.

Rooney polled 11,095 to Eikenberry's 10,082 votes in the Kings County, 14th district contest.

Upstate, Congressman Thadeus J. Dulski of Buffalo won the Democratic nomination for a seventh term. He defeated anti-war candidate Edward A. Fox, a professor at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

Rep. James M. Hanley of Syracuse won the nomination over Harvey Bates, a Syracuse University chaplain and war critic in the 35th district.

In other races, Democrat Herman Badillo, viewed by some as a possible future mayor of New York City, won a six-way race for the 21st district nomination.

Reform Democrat Rep. James H. Scheuer invaded the 22nd district in the Bronx to defeat Rep. Jacob H. Gilbert. Scheuer was shuffled out of a seat after reapportionment when four incumbent representatives found only three seats left.

Irvington Mayor Peter A. Peyser won a four-way Republican contest in the Westchester-Rockland counties 25th district. William Dretzin of Ossining won a three-way race in the 25th district Democratic primary.

Republican John Terry of Syracuse defeated Clarence Kadys in the upstate 34th district.

Michaels, Dominick Beaten; Keys in Abortion Reform

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Democratic Assemblyman George M. Michaels and Republican Sen. D. Clinton Dominick, who played key roles in liberalizing New York's abortion law, have lost their primary elections to staunch opponents of the controversial statute.

Michaels, of Auburn, and Dominick, of Newburgh, were among the eight incumbents defeated in Tuesday's legislative primaries.

All told, there were 99 contests for seats in the legislature. Most involved New York City Democrats.

Michaels cast the deciding vote when the Assembly gave final legislative approval last April to a bill ending virtually all restrictions on legal abortions in this state. He was beaten by John Rossi, a 33-year-old Auburn lawyer who said his victory resulted from "the way Michaels voted on the abortion bill."

Dominick was the main Senate sponsor of the measure. He lost to Richard E. Schermerhorn of Cornwall-on-Hudson, who made an issue of Dominick's sponsorship of the bill.

The other incumbents who were overtaken by challengers were Democratic Assemblymen William F. Passannante and John J. Walsh of Manhattan; Lawrence P. Murphy of Brooklyn, and Edward Stevenson of The Bronx.

Also, Republican Assemblyman Richard Cerosky of Valhalla, Westchester County, and Democratic Sen. William Rosenblatt of Brooklyn.

In the most intricate legislative primary, Assemblyman Alber J. Hausbeck of Buffalo scored a victory and simultaneously suffered a defeat.

Hausbeck came under fire from his Democratic party leaders in 1969, when he voted with Republicans for an increase in the state sales tax. This year, he was endorsed by Erie County Republicans and fended off a GOP challenger, former City Councilman William Lyman.

He also sought the Democratic designation but was defeated in that contest by Councilman Raymond Lewandowski, who ran up a better than 3-1 margin. Horace C. Johnson, also a city councilman, squeezed into second place between Lewandowski and Hausbeck. Johnson will be running for the Assembly seat in November as the Liberal Party candidate.

Meanwhile, Republican Sen. William E. Adams of the Buffalo suburb of Kenmore defeated two challengers in his first election since being acquitted by a U.S. District Court jury of charges of perjury and obstruction of justice related to an investigation of the state's medicaid program. Adams generally is regarded as the father of medicaid in New York.

Erie County's Democratic leadership suffered a setback as Sen. James D. Griffin of Lackawanna defeated John J. Whelan. Whelan, the undersheriff, was chosen by the party's executive committee instead of Griffin.

In contests not involving incumbents, Barry Kramer, making his first bid for elective office after playing for the New York Knickerbockers and San Francisco Warriors in the National Basketball Association, was nominated by Democrats to run for an Assembly seat in the Schenectady area. He defeated Donald Ackerman, a high school social studies teacher.

In the 150th Assembly District, including Jamestown, Democrats chose as their candidate Rolland Kidder, a Naval officer who has been serving in South Vietnam since last July and could not campaign in his home area. Kidder defeated John Palillo, formerly employed by a radio station in Dunkirk.

DEFEATED CANDIDATE—Assemblyman George Michaels greets his grandaughter, Rebecca, 22 months, after voting in Auburn's Primary Election. Michaels cast the tie-breaking vote during the last legislature, passing the State's abortion bill. He was injured in an auto accident in May and had to leave the hospital in a wheelchair to vote. City Taking No Chances

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

City officials are apparently taking no chances that a "legal technicality" will come back to haunt them on the controversial Hess Apartment issue in the new First Ward (formerly part of the old 12th Ward).

Louis J. Hess a New Jersey contractor, has submitted a request to the Common Council for the rezoning of a six-acre parcel of land known as the Wilbur Tract from R-1 (residential) to R-6 (multiple housing).

A public hearing had been scheduled for 8:30 tonight by Donald E. Quick (D-Sixth Ward), chairman of the Council's Laws and Rules Committee. Quick announced this morning that the meeting had been canceled "due to improper legal notification that appeared in the Kingstonian, a weekly paper."

The law states that a legal notice must appear at least five days in advance of the public hearing in the official newspaper (or in Kingston's case, newspapers) of the city. The legal notice was printed in The Daily Freeman on Saturday. According to Quick, it was also published in The Kingstonian, but appears today for the first time.

It was just such a "legal technicality" that led to a Supreme Court reversal of the Common Council's approval of the garden-type apartment complex in March of 1968.

The court ruled that the city had not complied entirely with the law in that it did not forward the zoning change request to the county planning board for approval.

Quick said that the public hearing has been rescheduled for July 15 at 8:30 p. m. in the city hall. Also under discussion at that time will be a proposed ordinance to require fences around swimming pools.

Returning Vets Invited to Join Local Guard

KINGSTON — Lt. Col. Karl C. Verbeck, commanding officer of the 1st Battalion 156th Artillery New York National Guard, with headquarters at Kingston, advises that former soldiers can now enlist in the Army National Guard in the same grade held at the time of separation from active duty up to grade E-7.

This liberal policy is part of the National Guard's "Try One" enlistment program. It is aimed at encouraging ex-soldiers, especially men with combat duty in Vietnam to sign up for a one-year enlistment in the National Guard.

Lt. Col. Verbeck hopes that after a year veterans will like the National Guard and extend their enlistments for additional years of service.

Enlistments also are open to non-veterans. Several vacancies exist in the Kingston and Newburgh units. Battery "A" which is located in Poughkeepsie is presently at full strength. Young men are invited to place their names on the waiting lists. Veterans and non-veterans are advised to call their local National Guard Armory for details.

As a further inducement to veterans of Vietnam the National Guard has a program whereby any combat veteran released in grade E-5 or higher is eligible for an immediate commission as second lieutenant in the National Guard. All units in the three communities of Kingston, Poughkeepsie and Newburgh have officer vacancies. Contact any of the Armories for full details.

September Date Possible for Murder Re-Trial

By WALTER S. CLARK

Re-trial of the murder case of two Auburn Prison inmates accused o killing a Westchester County deputy sheriff during a shooting incident on the State Thruway on Sept. 13, 1968, is tentatively scheduled for the September term of County Court.

The first trial which entered its fourth week on Monday ended abruptly Tuesday afternoon when the jury of nine men and three women informed Judge Raymond J. Mino that they could not come to a "positive unanimous decision."

A spokesman for the jury declared the jury "hopelessly deadlocked," and informed the judge that they would be unable to agree on a verdict even if they deliberated further.

Mino discharged the jury after the deadlock and then directed that a new trial be held.

Charles Culhane and Gerald McGivern, both 25, the defendants in the case accused of the fatal shooting of 63-year-old William Fitzgerald sat impassively at the defense counsel table as they listened to the brief proceedings.

Immediately after court recessed Culhane and McGivern were led by deputy sheriffs back to the county jail ceilblock. About mid-afternoon the two prisoners were returned under guard to Green Haven Prison in the Dutchess County Community of Stormville, where they probably will be detained until the second trial.

After court adjourned, District Attorney Joseph P. Torraca who prosecuted the case with Assistant District Attorney Edward M. P. Greene, told a Freeman reporter, "We are ready for trial on the first available date."

Paul Vladimir, attorney for Culhane, and Joshua Koplovitz, counsel for McGivern, reasserted their belief in the "innocence" of their clients and that Culhane and McGivern "will be acquitted eventually" of the murder chage.

The outcome of the trial stirred considerable controversy in the area because of the apparent brief time the jury had actually deliberated on the testimony of witnesses for both sides and the evidence that had been submitted during the long trial.

Although the case went to the jury at about 3:30 p.m. on Monday it was noted that the jurors actually deliberated less than seven hours. For about two hours late Monday, the jury was in the courtroom listening to a reading of the transcribed testimony that had been given by Culhane earlier. Then the jury went out for dinner and returned to their room to resume deliberations about 8 p.m.

Before 11 p.m. Monday, the jury was taken by bus in charge of deputy sheriffs and court officers to the Governor Clinton Hotel where they were "locked up" for the night. Deliberations resumed about 10 a.m. yesterday and at 12:20 p.m. word came from the jury room that the jurors wanted to return to court.

Shortly after 1:20 p.m. Judge Mino took the bench and within minutes the decision to discharge the jury came after a spokesman for the jurors reported the deadlock.

Culhane and McGivern could have been sentenced to life in prison or to death in the electric chair if they had been convicted of killing Fitzgerald. The state of New York had abolished capital punishment in 1965, except in murder cases where a law enforcement officer was the victim.

The fatal shooting of Fitzgerald occurred in the Town of Plattekill, while Fitzgerald and another Westchester County deputy sheriff, Joseph Singer, were transporting Culhane, McGivern and another Auburn prison inmate, Joseph Bowerman to White Plains for a court hearing on a writ of corum nobis that had been obtained by Culhane, who was seeking to have a sentence imposed in White Plains in connection with a Pelham Manor gas station holdup set aside.

Squeaker for Top Spot

Samuels, Meehan Take the County

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

Contrary to statewide Democratic Primary results, Ulster County Democrats selected Howard Samuels over Arthur J. Goldberg for the nomination for governor and Robert Meehan over Adam Walinsky in the nod for the attorney general candidacy.

Only 60 county votes and three city votes separated the vote between Samuels and Goldberg with the upstate industrialist receiving 1,056 and Goldberg 993. Of this number, Samuels received 233 votes in the city to Goldberg's 236.

All votes tabulated locally are unofficial with 22 districts in seven towns yet to report.

Commenting that Arthur Goldberg "never set foot in Ulster County" whereas Howard Samuels campaigned here four times within the last year, County Democratic Chairman Aaron E. Klein and other Democratic officials expressed surprise that Samuels didn't run stronger in this area.

Ulster Democrats, in an extremely light vote also gave Basil Paterson a bigger vote than they gave to any other candidate on the ticket. The nominee for lieutenant governor, a Harlem congressman, received 1,218 votes to his opponent, Jerome A. Ambro Jr.'s 651.

Following a state pattern, local Democrats went strongly for Westchester County Congressman Richard L. Ottinger for the U.S. Senatorial nomination. The Westchester County Congressman tallied 1,040 votes and was trailed by Paul O'Dwyer with 529, Theodore Sorensen with 417 and Richard "Max" McCarthy with 120.

In the race for the attorney general nomination, Rockland County District Attorney Robert Meehan received the nod over the victorious Adam Walinsky who won the statewide contest. In Ulster, Meehan's vote was 852 to Walinsky's 777.

Reflecting on the primary as a whole, Klein was obviously happy about Goldberg's win. He had supported the former Supreme Court Justice from the start and feels that he will be a stronger opponent to face the Republican governor, Nelson A. Rockefeller in the Nov. 3 election.

Saying he was surprised that Samuels did not run even stronger here in the county, Klein said he felt good about the Goldberg victory "not because I like Samuels less, but because I like Goldberg more."

He emphasized that his party is "now going to have to look, not for a shining personality, but to a promise of his (Goldberg's) qualities." Klein said he felt Goldberg came through because his long public service, in so many areas, was well recognized.

The huge vote for the Black candidate, Paterson, also came as a surprise to the many Democrats who awaited returns at the Court House. Klein felt it was an indication that people are now judging men on their merits without regard to color.

The only outcome of the contests that seemed to surprise very few was Ottinger's significant edge over his opponents. Klein suggested that the Conservation-minded congressman was "peculiarly oriented to our kind of electorate."

He also felt that the same sort of label might well be attached to Meehan who hails from nearby Rockland County and is attuned to the problems of the Mid-Hudson Valley. The chairman said the Democratic voters of Ulster County perhaps admired Meehan's aggressiveness and his record as a prosecutor.

Not too many geographical trends appeared in the voting over the county. Goldberg and Samuels each captured districts of the city wards up and downtown, with Goldberg finding victory in Esopus, Plattekill, Rosendale and Wawarsing. Samuels was victorious in Hurley, Ulster, Marbletown, New Paltz, Olive, Saugerties, Shandaken and Woodstock.

Towns not reporting include Rochester, Shawangunk, Denning, Gardiner, Hardenburgh, Lloyd and the Town of Kingston.

Trooper, Trucker Hurt in Crash

HIGHLAND

A state trooper and a truck driver were injured at 5 p. m. Tuesday in a flaming three-vehicle collision that occurred on Route 9W four tenths of a mile south of the Mid-Hudson Bridge approach and destroyed a state police sedan and a pickup truck.

Criminal Action Pending

Highland state police said criminal action is pending. The injured were taken to Vassar Hospital in Poughkeepsie.

According to an investigation report of Captain R. F. Orr, Sergeant Stanley Kowalik and BCI Investigator W. E. Beyea, the vehicles involved in the spectacular collision were a sedan owned by the State Police and operated by Trooper Charles Mataraza, 32, of Milton, assigned to the Fishkill station; a pickup truck driven by Taras Bozydaj, 24, of Highland and a convertible operated by Diana Harper, 26, of Olivebridge.

Trooper Mataraza was treated at Vassar Hospital for lacerations of the scalp and contusions. He was later released. Bozydaj was taken to the same hospital and treated for second and third degree burns of the face, hands, arms and body. His condition was listed as critical.

State Police reports noted that Trooper Mataraza was southbound on Route 9W and the truck driven by Bozydaj was traveling north when it reportedly veered off the east shoulder of the highway, continued on for a distance of 176 feet and returned to the road where it crashed into the left rear of the Harper vehicle in the southbound lane.

A Collision and Flames

Authorities said the truck then collided with the State Police car. The truck suddenly burst into flames that ignited the troopers sedan. Both vehicles were totally destroyed by the fire.

Local fire units were dispatched to the scene to quell the blaze.

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Reno Police Inspector Rudy Lak put in for 774 hours overtime, arguing he had worked a nine-hour day since 1966.

Pledge of Allegiance to Flag: School Children Must Stand

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—School children may not remain seated during the pledge of allegiance to the flag under a ruling from Ewald B. Nyquist, state education commissioner.

In an Orange County case on Tuesday, Nyquist ruled that Kristina Bielenberg must obey a town of Highland school district No. 1 decision that she does not have the right to remain seated during the pledge.

Miss Bielenberg had refused to participate in the daily salute to the flag and pledge of allegiance, or to stand silently or leave the classroom while others were pledging the flag.

She sought a ruling by Nyquist which would allow her to remain seated during the pledge because, she said, her refusal was predicated on "a deeply rooted philosophical and moral feeling" that the pledge itself is meaningless.

Nyquist said he recognized the constitutional rights of a student not to participate in the rendering of the flag salute, but added the central issue is "how the rights and interests of the appellant may be harmonized with the rights and interests of other students" and with educational responsibilities of school officials.

He said the requirement students either stand silently or leave the classroom during the rendering by others of the salute and pledge "in no way infringes upon petitioner's constitutional rights to refrain from participating.

"Rather, this action adequately harmonizes petitioner's right to abstain from participation with the right of her peers to participate, without distraction, in a valuable educational experience," Nyquist said.

Nyquist also said the pledge is not meant to be a statement of prevailing conditions in the United States but "rather its words are a statement of our goals and our national aspirations, toward which we must strive if we are to pursue the ideals enshrined in our constitution.

"The pledge ceremony is, of course, meaningless if it is reduced to mechanical rote," he said. "It is meant to be an instructional tool and a guide to our collective social objectives and social conscience.

"As a matter of sound educational policy, a student, while free not to participate, cannot be permitted to intrude upon the importance of the educational experience of others," Nyquist ruled.

Javits and Reid Propose New Probe of Rail Woes

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Two New York Republicans proposed yet a third investigation into the economic woes of the nation's railroads Tuesday.

Sparked by the bankruptcy petition of the Penn Central, two investigations had already been called for in the House and Senate.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits and Rep. Ogden Reid filed bills in both houses calling for a joint committee to investigate all aspects of the railroad industry.

A key provision of their measure adopted a plan by the Nixon administration for the government to guarantee up to $750 million in emergency loans to the railroads. The loans would be administered by the Department of Transportation.

Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, and Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., chairman of a Senate commerce subcommittee, both plan investigations.

Neither Hartke nor Patman have embraced the administration's loan guarantee proposal, and have indicated reservations.

A spokesman for Javits that the bill drafted by the New Yorkers was more limited than the administration's as far as the loan guarantees go. He said under the Javits-Reid measure, such loans could only be used for railroading purposes.

This limitation was seen as important, since many railroad companies, including the Penn Central, have business interests other than transportation.

"For the present, some form of emergency assistance such as loan guarantees, with adequate safeguards to protect the taxpayer, is clearly necessary," Reid and Javits said in a joint statement.

"However," their statement continued, "we believe it is incumbent upon the new management of the Penn Central at the same time to act aggressively in dealing with financial and organizational problems of the company.

"The emergency loan guarantee contemplated in our bill will not solve the problem alone...

"We believe that a joint congressional committee can recommend a comprehensive solution to the problems of the railroad industry — keeping in mind the 69,000 commuters in New York State alone — and bring together the best minds and best proposals to deal with the structural bottlenecks in our nation's transportation system...

"Our aim is to keep the railroad operating whatever may be the legal auspices under which it does so."

Another Creditor Tactic Is Bared

WASHINGTN (UPI)—"Hello, Mr. Jones, this is the International Corp. calling. I'm Mr. Savage, the director of affidavits here and I have something very important to discuss with you. Get a piece of paper and a pencil and I'll explain what this is all about. . .

That is the start of a model telephone script for a bill collection agency. Its purpose is to convince debtors with overdue accounts that they face trouble if they don't pay up.

Charles H. Baron, who works for Community Legal Services, Inc., an antipoverty agency in Philadelphia, showed it Tuesday to the National Commission Consumer Finance.

The commission was created by Congress to undertake a six-month study on how to revise credit laws which, witnesses contend, now sanction harassment, humilitation, garnishments and other tactics designed to frighten debtors.

Baron said he has filed a court suit to block "future use of tactics designed for the purpose of producing so much annoyance that the alleged debtor will pay anything just to put an end to it."

One such tactic, he said, is "calling the place of the debtor's employment and leaving a message that the debtor's child has been hit by a car."

Baron also said he has filed a suit to bar "the use of oral misreprentations . . . and other harassing tactics, usually over the telephone." The script he showed the commission is a sample. It uses terms which have a legal ring about which mean nothing. For example:

"Yesterday, Mr. Jones, the Ace Motor Co. came into these public offices and swore out an affidavit against you in the amount of $156.83. This affidavit charges you with attempt to evade Ace Motors and directly refusing to pay this lawful obligation for $156.83 . . .

"This means that you will be served with these papers and a summons and that you will be sold out at public sale after judgement. But I am calling you first as a courtesy, to let you know that the only way this can be avoided is if the $156.83 is in my office and on my desk no later than 5 p.m. tomorrow! . . .

Cosmonauts—Some Ill Effects

Msocow (UPI)—The Soyuz 9 cosmonauts show a variety of ill effects from their record space flight of 18 days that raise some doubt about man's ability to withstand long periods of weightlessness, the Soviet news agency Tass said today.

Among the effects noted in an unusually pessimistic report was the cosmonauts' inability to readjust to gravity after four days back on earth.

None of the cosmonauts' health problems appeared to be serious, but Tass quoted an unidentified member of the medical team examining them as saying the problem of returning to normal after a long space flight "is not so simple after all."

The report contrasted with the optimistic statements issued shortly after Col. Andrian Nikolayev and Vitaly Sevastianov returned to earth June 19. At that time, their flight was described as proof that man can live and work comfortably for long period s in space.

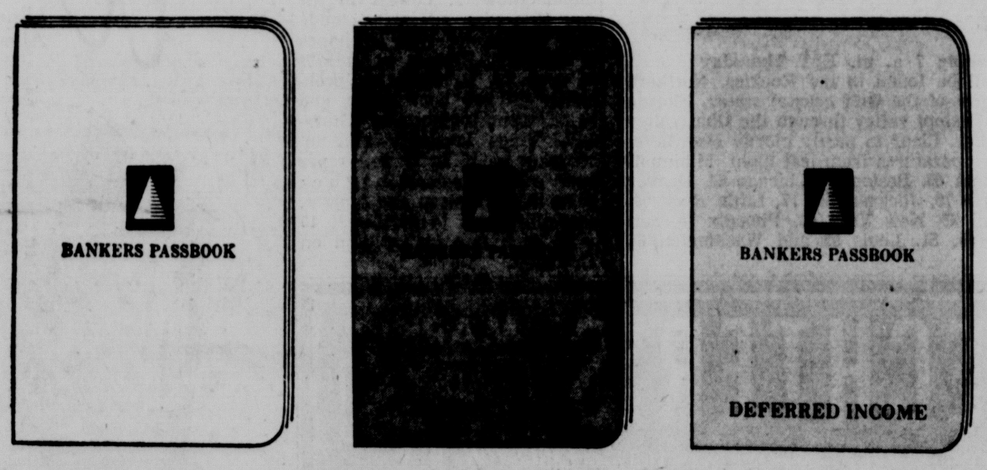

Their flight broke the space endurance record of two weeks set by Frank Borman and James A. Lovell Jr. in Gemini 7 in 1965.

Since returning to earth, Nikolayev and Sevastianov have been undergoing a series of examinations in quarantine in the cosmonaut Star City compound near Moscow.

Tass said the cosmonauts had lost weight and muscle tone during their space flight and were somewhat instable and having difficulty sleeping since their return to earth.

How long can you go without money?

1 year-2 years at 5¼%.
2 years-10 years at 5¼%.
2 years-10 years at 5¼%.
Interest deferred to maturity.

If you can go without at least some of your money for a while, you can earn higher rates of interest than a regular savings account gives you.

With any one of three Bankers Passbook accounts (minimum deposit, $500).

With these accounts you have to leave your money on deposit anywhere from 90 days to 10 years. Not surprisingly, the longer the period the higher the interest rate. (See above.)

You at least get to take the interest out, though.

Although with one of the new Bankers Passbooks, you even have to go without the interest. This is for people who want the tax advantage of postponing part of their income (the interest piles up until maturity).

If you're interested, come into any branch of the State of New York National Bank and ask about our Bankers Passbooks. You won't be saying "goodbye" to your money, just "so long."

You'll find a banker at The State of New York National Bank.

Reportedly Occupied Old Farm Building

Six Jailed on Variety of Charges

ELLENVILLE

Investigation by state police of trespassers reported to have virtually taken over an old farm building on the Lundy estate in the Town of Wawarsing in Potterville, resulted in the arrests of six New York City youths on a variety of charges.

The probe conducted by Sergeant Edward Whalen and Troopers John Schatzel and John Lang began at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday and concluded between 9 and 10 p.m. when the arrests were completed.

Arrested were Dennis Thomas Frisone and George Hamczyk, both 17, Joseph Otero, Salvatore Charles Richichi and Charles Kritsky, all 16, and 18-year-old Enrique Pino, all of New York City.

The defendants were arraigned before Rochester Town Justice Harold Lipton. They were committed to the county jail in lieu of $1,000 bail each and preliminary hearing was adjourned until July 1 at 7:30 p.m.

State Police said troopers went to the estate located in an area of the Town of Wawarsing known as Potterville and arrested Frisone, Hamczyk and Otero on charges of criminal trespass in the first degree, a felony. Later Pino, Richichi and Kritsky were taken into custody when then returned to the estate where the six reportedly had been occupying one of the several old farm buildings on the property.

Subsequent investigation disclosed the group had in their possession a hand gun, marijuana and LSD and an implement adapted for the administering of narcotics — two hashish pipes.

Each youth was charged with the felony of criminal trespass first degree and illegal possesion of a firearm — a hand gun, criminal possession of dangerous drugs in the sixth degree — two counts each, unlawful possession of fireworks, and criminal possession of implements used for administering dangerous drugs.

RESTORED — The footbridge over the waterfilled section of the old Delaware and Hudson Canal at Alligerville has been restored after vandalism leveled the wooden span earlier this year. Trooper J. F. Weisbeck of the Ellenville State Police investigated the incident and restitution was reportedly made by the minor involved in the incident. The bridge affords hikers a closer view of the historic old canal section which has been declared a National Historic Landmark.

A Meeting With Mayor Koenig

KINGSTON

A delegation of residents from the Rondout area of the city met with Mayor Francis R. Koeing in his office Tusday to discuss a variety of problems including lack of shopping facilities in Broadway East and the need for a patrolman in the Downtown section of the city.

Mrs. Annie Jackson, a member of the Rondout Community Action Advisory Board, was elected chairman of the group of 12 persons which met with Mayor Koenig. Others included Arthur Randolph, chairman of the Rondout Advisory Board and Joseph Lawson, vice chairman along with Mrs. Malinda Davis, Rondout Community organizer.

Lack of bus service was a prime topic of discussion at the meeting which lasted about an hour. Residents of the area would like a special bus regularly scheduled to carry shoppers to the uptown business area. Mrs. Davis is coordinating a survey of the needs of area residents in regards to bus service after which discussions will be held with the bus line.

The need for shopping facilities, especially a supermarket, was termed acute by Mrs. Davis. The B and F Supermarket closed in mid-May leaving the area without a major shopping facility. The mayor said that a number of developers are interested in the downtown section but as yet no specific proposals have been forwarded.

The mayor did reveal plans for a mini-park behind Rondout Grdens for the children in that complex.

The delegation complained about the "untidy mess" at Block Park and the mayor, noting that the parks were not officially open yet, did promise a cleanup campaign in that park.

Mrs. Davis said that while the mayor did not agree to a foot patrolman in the Rondout area "he did not disagree either." The area has been plagued with vandalism for some time.

OK Subdivision Draft

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

SAUGERTIES

The final draft of the Town of Saugerties subdivision regulations was approved at Tuesday night's Planning Board session and will be presented for review by the Town Board at a special meeting prior to regular board meeting Thurday, July 9.

If the Town Board approves the draft, the subdivision controls could be adopted at the regular meeting.

The Planning Board with Chairman Irving Oltmann, presiding reviewed the changes suggested, at a recent public hearing, during a special workshop session held June 18. Manuel S. Emanuel Associates Inc., community planners for the town embodied the changes proposed and presented the preliminary drafts at last night's Planning Board session. James Sowlakis Jr., a member of the Emanuel firm presented the drafts.

An improtant change in the definition of a subdivison in Article II was approved and shall now read: The division of any parcel of land into two or more lots, blocks, or sites, regardless of size, requiring any new street or extension of municipal facilities, or the creation of any public improvements; or the division of any land into two or more lots, blocks, parcels or sites, any one of which is less than two acres in area, not requiring any new street or extension of municipal facilities, or the creation of any public improvements. Subdivision includes the division of any land for the purpose of offer, sale, lease or development, either on the installment plan or upon any and all other plans, terms and conditions, including resubdivision.

The balance of amendments suggested were approved by the board

Supervisor A. Michael Schovel and Councilman Francis Hallion attended the meeting and it was agreed that the Town Board would call a special meeting prior to the regular Town Board session to review the entire control measure.

In other businses, the Planning Board reviewed another preliminary plat, Because of primary voting in the town hall, the meeting was held in the Justice Court room.

Members attending in addition to Chairman Oltmann were Roy Almquist, vice chairman; Robert Allen, secretary; Morow Decker and Gregory Fowler. Mrs. Mary Guyer, assistant to the secrtary was also in attendance.

Writ Is Obtained For Murder Suspect

KINGSTON

A hearing on a writ of habeas corpus seeking the release of Rodney Arnold, 29, of Kerhonkson, who is facing a charge of murder in the fatal shooting of a 31-year-old woman, from the Ulster County jail is scheduled for Thursday before County Judge Raymond J. Mino.

The writ was obtained Tuesday by Francis Martocci, attorney for Arnold, who is accused of the murder of Mrs. Elizabeth Blaustein, mother of three, of Alligerville on the morning of June 1.

The defendant claims he is being illegally imprisoned and detained in the county jail and contends that the information filed against him is insufficient to supply grounds for belief that the defendant had committed the crime charged or any crime.

The petitioner further claims that the information is insufficient to confer jurisdiction upon the town justice who presumably issued the warrant or arrest and to hold the defendant for examination.

Arnold recently was transferred from Kingston Hospital to the county jail, after he showed improvement following treatment for a bullet wound of the head which authorities contend was self inflicted.

According to State Police at Ellenville, Arnold, a guard at the Catskill Reformatory at Napanoch and father of three children, allegedly shot Mrs. Blaustein with a 9mm automatic pistol which authorities say belonged to the defendant.

The shooting occurred on a lonely section of Route 209 near Kyserike Road in Accord. Mrs. Blaustein, a resident of Alligerville, who was legally separated from her husband, was found bleeding in her station wagon some distance from where troopers later discovered Arnold.

18-Year-Old Vote

The bill to lower the voting age from 21 to 18 years in all Federal, state and local elections beginning in 1971 has passed the first of two tests. It was signed by the President and must be affirmed by the Supreme Court. These are both big hurdles to granting the vote to the 11 million young people between 18 and 21 who would then be enable to work inside the system, not against it. They could even decide the national election.

President Nixon had taken a position that the voting age should be lowered by a constitutional amendment rather than by statute because the only reference to voter qualification in the Constitution rests on qualifications prescribed by state legislatures. House Minority Leader Gerald R. Ford questioned whether or not "the President could, in good conscience, sign the bill." But White House source predicted at that time he would.

One reason is that the lower vote is part of a package which extends until 1975 the Voting Rights Act, which protects registration and voting of blacks in the South. The scope of the act was broadened at the instigation of the Administration. The President would not want to endanger this part of the package. He signed the bill knowing that immediately there will be a test of the constitutionality of lowering the voting age by statute.

In any case, young people know that the Congress wishes to welcome them into the political process. Whether by statute or by constitutional amendment will determine how long they must wait.

Security Plan

Increasing concern over the safety of American diplomats, since South American terrorists began kidnaping them, has led the State Department to request $1.25 million to improve overseas protective security for America's men and women on the forward line of national defense.

Deputy Under Secretary of State William B. Macomber Jr., who has headed a department task force on the subject since terrorists began kidnaping American diplomats in South America, described how the funds would be used in testimony before a Senate Appropriations subcommittee.

First, three emergency teams would be set up in Washington, ready to rush into danger areas as needed. Next additional security guards would be engaged and extra cars would follow those diplomats believed in danger. Next, better lighting of offices and officials' homes, as well as improved communications, would be installed.

Jack Anderson Says

White House Wall of Isolation

WASHINGTON — The great White House reorganization will merely strengthen the palace guard and increase President Nixon's isolation.

This is the reluctant opinion, at least, of a few presidential intimates who have confided their concern to this column.

They fear that the President is walling himself off from the government he is supposed to run. Increasingly, he has scorned the regular governmental machinery and has relied upon his own policy-making apparatus. Now he has established a new management crew which is supposed to see that his policies are carried out.

The President has hardly concealed his impatience with the federal bureaucracy, which lumbers along on its own momentum seemingly impervious to his edicts. He distrusts the career officials who are supposed to take their orders from him but who slip up to Capitol Hill behind his back to lobby against the policies they don't like.

Career men have learned that Presidents come and go, also that Congress is the source of fiscal blessings. They maintain their pipelines to the congressional committees, therefore, no matter who may be occupying the White House.

As fast as they learn of new presidential moves, the information invariably is leaked to key members of Congress. All the professional policymakers — from the military chiefs to the diplomatic planners — play congressional politics.

Presidential Isolation.

A frustrated Richard Nixon, whose programs often have been undermined under his very nose, has tried to plant party loyalists in key positions throughout the federal government. Political clearance is now necessary for jobs that, under past administrations, used to require only professional competence.

The President has also surrounded himself with trusted aides and advisers, who control the flow of information between himself and the government. The Joint Chiefs of Staff still grind out military plans; the State Department's planning board continues to produce position papers; the domestic departments still prepare elaborate programs. But seldom do they get past the palace guard to press their recommendations upon the President.

Nixon likes solitude, dislikes personal confrontation. His staff, therefore, keeps his appointments to a bare minimum and instructs agency heads to submit "option papers." The President prefers to have all problems reduced to writing with the options spelled out.

Then he will hole up for long periods in his hideaway in the old Rococo office building across the parking lot from the White House. He will settle down with his papers among the familiar photographs and mementos he has collected during his career.

Human Element Missing

He emerges with an excellent grasp of the papers, polls, charts and graphs that reach him. But some intimates feel that he doesn't participate enough in the give-and-take and doesn't take into account the human element. Some of his solutions, which looked good on paper, lacked an understanding of the human undercurrent.

The President sits at the center of government supposedly with a thousand hands, pulling strings, controlling movements, touching everything. He conducts the Indochina war, sets foreign policy, guides legislation, directs budget planning, makes domestic decisions, controls the government news output, plans political strategy.

Nixon does all this through his personal staff, many of them inexperienced in government and unqualified to cope with problems that have been handled in the past by specialists. Result: the young lawyers and advertising men around Nixon are formulating policies that sometimes are too deep for them.

They don't understand the background, don't know enough about the details, don't appreciate the subtleties to make sound decisions. More often than not, they don't even consult the government experts who, increasingly, are operating in a vacuum.

White House Yes-Men

John Ehrlichman, the President's majordomo for domestic affairs, and Henry Kissinger, the foreign affairs satrap, have also surrounded themselves largely with yes-men who don't bring the clash of opposing opinions into the policy planning.

The President functions, says one intimate, "as the senior partner of a law firm who reviews the work of his underlings. He is issue-oriented, not management-oriented."

He will read the opposing views of subordinates but almost never will bring them together to hear them out. He leaves it to his aides, usually Ehrlichman, to resolve any differences. Even Ehrlichman seldom brings the antagonists together for a showdown but straightens out the differences by conferring with them separately. The emphasis is on smooth efficiency sometimes at the expense of quality.

The President has now turned the management of the government over to George Shultz, who shows up on the White House organizational charts as an equal with Ehrlichman and Kissinger. Insiders are predicting that Shultz, inevitably, will end up in a power struggle with Ehrlichman.

Those who have clashed with Ehrlichman in the past have lost. Robert Ellsworth, a White House aide, tried to bypass Ehrlichman and arrange direct access to the President. He wound up in Paris, far from the presidential ear, as the NATO Ambassador. Budget director Robert Mayo also crossed Ehrlichman and lost out to Shultz for the new management post.

Meanwhile, government officials outside the White House feel more insulated than ever from the President. They are relying more and more upon press leaks to get their ideas across to him. Others are threatening to resign out of sheer frustration.

Universities, Activities

WASHINGTON — Complaints are coming into the government that colleges and universities which enjoy tax exemptions have been allowing their facilities to be used for political purposes.

Some of the "demonstrations" on campuses which have attracted nationwide attention have openly expressed a viewpoint on questions that are certain to be issues in the forthcoming political campaign.

Those who are complaining about the attitudes of universities and colleges say that not only are the students using the campus as meeting places for their political activities but that they are actually getting the open support of members of the faculty and, in some cases, the help of segments of the boards of trustees.

Federal statutes forbid a tax-exempt organization to engage in certain political activities or to attempt to influence legislation. The prohibited activities include "contacting or urging the public to contact legislators in order to support, propose or oppose legislation, or advocating the adoption or rejection of legislation."

The federal laws have long given tax exemptions to educational organizations, foundations and insitutitons. But the big question is whether the recent activities on the campuses will be ruled as "political activity" when challenged by citizens who initiate litigation in order to discourage the cooperation which some of the educational institutions are giving to the antiwar movement. In some cases, arrangements are being made by colleges to permit special recesses so as to allow students time for political activity. Some of the critics are saying that this is not a customary action and that it raises doubts as to whether the institutions themselves may be supporting the political movements involved.

The chances are that the Internal Revenue service will be asked to resolve many such disputes as well develop in consequence of the emergence of various organizations on college campuses designed to influence Congress and governmental policies.

The tax exemption is a very important factor in the life of the modern private college which gains much of its support from donations. The federal government, of course, has the right to deny colleges a tax exemption, and if it does so, individual citizens are not permitted to take deductions for gifts they may make to institutions which have lost their tax exemption.

It is doubtful whether students may hold meetings in buildings on the campus to support particular candidates, as this is using college facilities for political purposes. There is no objection to such meetings by students being held in some nearby area. The campus and the college buildings are, however, part of a tax-exempt institution, and when they are used for any political activity, the question is raised whether this puts a taint on the tax-exempt status of the institution itself.

That Whacky, Crazy Game of Golf

Some people have pneumonia. Others have leprosy. By me it's golf. I work in the morning and I work late at night, but the middle of the day is reserved for flogging a little white ball twenty yards off a tee, and putting forty yards on the green. The season is upon us again and if any of you want to learn some four-letter words that you have not heard before, buy some sticks and join a country club.

It is, as Chick Harbert once said, a target game. The hole is 440 yards from the tee, and you just count how many times you hit that buck and a quarter pill before it falls into the little hole. In my set they never count beyond nine.

If there are any readers who can break 90, they are (a) neglecting their business; (b) neglecting their wives; (c) liars. I'm a "c." If the ball is within 20 feet of the cup, I yell "It's a gimme" and pick it up. It's witless to take a chance with a putt which will stop twenty feet on the other side of the cup.

I played a round one day with Julius Boros and he said nothing. Normally, he says nothing but on this occasion he said less than nothing — just looked the other way. I play quite often with Tom Ferris, one of the world's great public relations men. He is lefthanded, has a stomach that covers his knees, places his left foot directly in front of his right, and hauls off and raps the ball a mile.

It goes a mile, but not on the fairway we're playing. On a few occasions, it wasn't even on our golf course. But what the heck — all kinds of horrifying things happen playing golf. I teed off once and sliced the ball into a tennis court. When the racqueteer saw two balls coming at him with speed — one large, one small — he became so unnerved that he turned to run and caught both of them on the back of the head.

He was irritated because I asked him to throw my ball back. In the house, I have a library of books on golf and I have read them all and they say the same things.

The things they demand of a golfer before he can try to hit the ball are utterly impossible: keep your head down so that, after you hit, you don't know where the ball went; interlock the pinky of your right hand between the index and third fingers of the left; both creases in the thumbs should point to the right shoulder; place the ball in front of the left instep if you can find one; don't sway the body; swivel your hips; bring the club back slowly, and downward with force.

Then miss it entirely. I will concede that the disease is incurable. Everybody reminds everybody else to relax, but that's the only thing the player cannot afford. His muscles and his nervous system twang like the strings on a drugstore violin.

If — God forbid — another player should cough, sneeze, speak or sigh, the man addressing the ball is permitted to murder the offender with a suitable club, like a two wood. Birds which sing, warble or hum are not allowed on well-kept courses. They distract the players. So do earthquakes and tornadoes, but they stop the game.

Women who play golf with their husbands repeat the same sorrowful sentence through the entire round: "Waddi do wrong that time?" I used to play with Rocky Marciano and Bernard Castro (he makes convertible clubs too) and the champ couldn't sink a putt if it was six inches from a swimming pool.

Jack Sullivan of Spring Lake has sold his restaurant and would play all night if someone would hold the sun in the middle of the sky. As a matter of class, he took a couple of lessons from Sam Snead. It improved Sullivan's game, but Snead went off to Georgia and blew the Master's Tournament.

Once I saw an elderly man get a hole in one and he became so hysterical that he ran back to the country club restaurant to tell his wife. "Big deal," she said. "I thought you had a heart attack." Gene Kroll and I played one round with a little boy who trounced both of us. "How long you been playing, son" said Kroll sarcastically. The kid looked up at the sky. "Oh," he said, "a long, long time. Must be two years now."

I remember when Arnie Palmer, playing Pebble Beach, drove seven successive hits into the Pacific Ocean on a par three. And recall my father, who counselled: "Never lose your temper; it will cost you strokes," missing a two foot putt twice and bending the club into a bow tie. When Mike Morgan, the columnist, misses a putt that's too short, he always says: "Dear God, why me?"

Now that the season is on, I must practice getting out from behind trees by dropping a ball on the fairway, and hitting it into another jungle. My daughter told me that, for Christmas, Santa is going to give me an electric saw...

Nixon Logic Contradicts

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — President Nixon's analysis of what this nation's economy needs is probably sound.

But some of his major actions this past year and a half contradict his own logic.

Nixon says productivity in the American economy depends on the effectiveness of management, the investment of capital for research development and advanced technology and most of all on the training and progressive spirit of 86 million working Americans.

But Nixon, like President Johnson before him, has cut back on the investment of capital for research and development.

The cutback in real dollars has been over a wide range and will, in the aggregate, affect almost every major industry, directly or indirectly.

Federal funds for basic and developmental research are down. It is not only space and defense which have less for research and development. The cuts extend through almost every department and agency whose studies aid business productivity.

Recent Nixon actions have made it much more difficult for private industry to make the continuing huge investment in modern machinery, computers and new plant and other equipment necessary to keep productivity moving up at the pace it must to hold inflation down and employment up.

That is, the tax credit on new investments for machinery and equipment has been eliminated. The cost of capital (interest rates) needed to buy modern machines has become prohibitively high.

Thousands of the type of small, imaginative companies — which have as a group produced an important share of this nation's new productivity techniques — have been forced to the wall, driven out of business or absorbed by larger staid companies with less imagination but more ready capital. This will slow development in such important fields as advanced electronics for years to come.

As for job training, this administration's own programs indicate that something is wrong with their operators.

More money may be needed. But even more importantly, these programs need to be studied to learn how to make certain that men are being trained in ways that will increase their industrial productivity. The reports indicate that too often this is not the case.

Freeman Readers Write the Editor

June 22, 1970

Neumaier States Case

Dear Sirs:

Since the publication of several 'news items' about the State University College at New Paltz and particularly about its present administration, I have been gratified by the strong support coming to me from organizations in this area. This has been all the more heartening in view of the many distortions and inaccuracies which have been circulated among the public almost daily by persons and groups seeking to discredit the college and its leadership.

I have felt on many occasions grateful appreciation for the Freeman's past cooperation in providing its readers helpful information concerning activities and newsworthy events at the college. However, during the immediate past you have helped to spur the current backlash against student and campus reactions in May to the enlargement of the war in Southeast Asia and the tragic killings at Kent State and Jackson State College.

The misleading headlines, slanted reporting, editorializing in the news articles, and biased selection of letters in your Letters to the Editor section, illustrate once again how unfortunate it is that cities of the size of Kingson are condemned to suffer from the absence of competition in the newspaper field.

For example, your news article of Friday, June 12, concerning the New Paltz Chamber of Commerce meeting on May 26 and the Chamber's commendation of the present college administration made several references to that Chamber meeting (at which the Kingston Freeman was not represented) which were at variance with the Chamber's own news release which you had previously published on May 28. First of all, the article among other inaccuracies refers to Dr. Samuel Gould as the Chancellor of the State Department of Education which of course he is not, having been for the past several years the Chancellor of the State University of New York.

The same June 12 story omitted mention of a single name as source of the reporter's information, nor did it give any of the names of the five members allegedly present and opposed to the action of the Chamber. Under the headline 'Protests and Chamber Resignations in New Paltz' with a subheading, 'Object to "Unanimous" Backing for Neumaier', the so-called news story refers to 'howls of protest' again vaguely attributed to 'a large number of Chamber of Commerce members' and again omitting mention of the identity of the howling members. The story further refers to alleged actions and reactions which took place at the annual luncheon of an organization identified as 'The Study Club,' and in this case the reporter uses as his authority 'a number of members' who apparently had in common an antipathy for the administration of the college and an aversion to having their names used. Apparently to make sure that he got his point across, the reporter then reiterated and elaborated upon the condemnation of the college's administration by the American Legion, and by implication left the reader with the impression that no one has ever spoken up supportively about the May events at the New Paltz campus. What kind of reporting do you call this? It reminds me of one of Kafka's novels, The Trial.

It is also regrettable that you have not published, up to this date, a letter by a leading New Paltz attorney whom you mention in the June 12 article as having played a major role at the now famous Chamber meeting of May 26. Such assistance as said attorney offered in attempting to correct the misinformation contained in your June 12 story is obviously of no use to your readers if you refuse to publish or at least report as to what he did and what he observed at the Chamber meeting.

When the New Paltz Chamber, under the pressure created by your June 12 story and by such Chamber members as apparently inspired that story, issued a news release clarifying its action, your report of this clarification on June 17 again showed how editorial bias dictates the headlines as well as the manner in which the content is served to your readers. The June 17 headline in the Kingston Freeman said in large letters: 'Paltz C of C . . . No Endorsement', with a subhead: 'Resolution Commending Administration.' In contrast, the same story in the New Paltz papers bore the following headlines: 'Chamber Directors Clarify Controversy' (New Paltz News) and 'Chamber Directors Dismiss Controversy, Plan New Goals' (New Paltz Independent).

As to the content of the articles, while the New Paltz papers factually reported the 'clarifying' action of the New Paltz Chamber, your June 17 story concerning the same action editorialized by asserting that the Chamber 'agreed' concerning the same action editorialized by asserting that the Chamber 'agreed' that the resolution did not endorse administration policies and 'agreed' that the word 'unamimous' referred only to the members present and voting. Actually, the Chamber had never claimed otherwise and was issuing the statement merely to clarify its intent and to prevent further misun derstanding, mininterpretation and controversy. Your use of the word 'agree' implied admission of guilt rather than 'clarification' as intended by the Chamber and as reported correctly by both of the other newspapers.

Another example of your bias may be seen in the circumstances surrounding the so-called Armagast letter which appeared in the Kingston Freeman on June 1. This dealt with the college faculty meeting on May 22 when my leadership during the May crisis was strongly endorsed by an overwhelming vote. 'Mr. John Martin Armagast' claimed that what happened at the faculty meeting on May 22 did not really happen, using techniques of distortion and obfuscation that recall the worst methods of totalitarian propaganda. You published that letter even though no such person existed at the college address listed, and no person by that name is a member of the faculty, staff or student body of the college. Not only did you fail to check on the identity of the party in question as a responsible newspaper ordinarily does, particularly in the case of an obviously controversial letter attacking the veracity of the college information office, but your editor later defended your unwillingness to correct the record. His defense was that an unidentified faculty member, who preferred to remain anonymous, had also written you in the meantime that, while there was in fact no Armagast, the letter-writer who had used that name was a member of the faculty and that he, the second correspondent, vouched for the correctness of the letter of the non-existing Mr. Arnagast. When the college information office informed you again that the original college news release was correct and that the allegations of the non-existing Mr. Armagast were untrue, you merely stated that you were sick of the whole business.

To add insult to injury, you have refused so far to publish a letter to the editor written to you by another member of the faculty whose identity you were able to verify and who has called you on at least two occasions pleading that his letter be publsihed under his own real name to set the record straight regarding the faculty action in question. He asked that you do so in fairness to your readers and because of the injustice done and the doubts and confusion created by the deception of the original defamatory letter. The kind of deception and undercover maneuvers that surround this entire event, starting with the letter of the non-existing Mr. Armagast, is one more reminder that Orwell's 1984 may be just around the corner.

I could go on and on, citing the story of June 10 ('County Legion Adopts Revised Stand on New Paltz with subhead 'Calls on Gould to Air Findings'); of June 17 ('VFW Asks State for "Appropriate Action." with subhead: 'Paltz College Ad ministration Under Attack'; of June 18 ('16 Professors Rap Paltz Policies'); and of June 19 ('Paltz K of C Joins the List: with subhead: 'Critical of Neumaier').

In none of these instances was I contacted for my views or for substantiating supplemental information which could have helped your readers get a more complete picture of what has been occurring. Intentionally or unintentionally, you are participating in what, to an increasing number of citizens of this area, appears to be a campaign of defamation and repression directed against the leadership of the State University at New Paltz. Some of the participants in this campaign appear to be worried over the increasingly successful attempts to improve the college academically, and over the concomitant challenge to the status quo and to the vested academic interests. The uneasiness among the rigid traditionalists in higher education is likely to continue for some time. There is little doubt that an overhauling of the curriculum and changers in college governance have only begun, and that these long overdue peaceful changes are supported by an increasing number of responsible students and faculty members.

It is no accident that during the last two years there has been an unprecendented increase in the applications for freshman and transfer positions at the college, both from the surrounding area and the entire state. As of the present writing, approximately 8,000 Freshman applications have been received for Fall admissions although, because of the intense competition for admission, only about one in eight has been accepted. It is evidence of growing public awareness of the stature of New Paltz which compares favorably with most other univesity colleges of the State University. But instead of being proud of this, your paper by its editorializing in news articles and other unfair practices as illustrated above, has joined the reactionary campaign of those forces that seek to undermine the college and to intimidate public servants who have the moral courage to speak out against an unjust war, the social injustice of racial discrimination, and the educational status quo of academic mediocrity.

It is naturally my hope that views like mine will not be fully submerged in the politically biased reporting which has characterized the Freeman's participation in the current campaign against the college administration, a campaign which reminds one of Ibsen's Enemy of the People. However I am confident that you will grant me this opportunity to respond at least partially to the recurring attacks that you find worthy of front page coverage. Thereby you enable me to reassure the many people who have encouraged me in these difficult times, that I have only begun to fight. My faith in America, like theirs, transcends the current attempts at repression, distortion and polarization. It is high time that public officials including university presidents serve with less concern, for their economic security, professional safety, and 'political' popularity than with fulfilling their public trust judiciously, conscientiously courageously and with integrity.

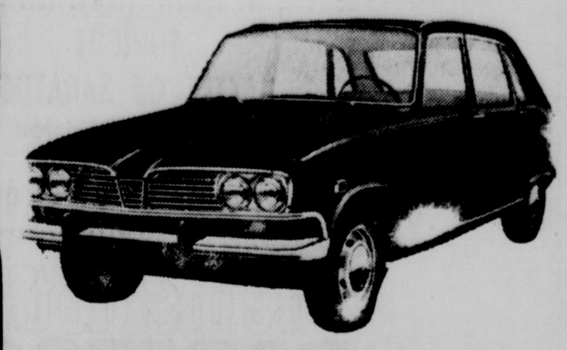

Sincerely,
JOHN J. NEUMAIER
President
State University at New Paltz

brink of complete disaster.

In the same manner, they embraced Sorensen, counting on the glamor of his association with the late President Kennedy to produce another winner. Sorensen complained late in the campaign, however, that he wasn't getting much help from the organization.

As might be expected, Samuels and Ottinger pitched their appeals to a beat-the-bosses theme. Ottinger, heir to a plywood industry fortune, poured money into a lavish television advertising campaign. Samuels spent his own money, too, but apparently not as generously.

Paterson, 41, and Walinsky, 33, fashioned much simpler victory formulas, trouncing their opponents both upstate and in New York City.

Walinsky beat Rockland County's District Attorney Robert Meehan by a 2-1 margin, while Paterson did ever better, scoring a 3-1 triumph over Jerome Ambro, a Long Island town supervisor whose chief prospect was thought to be that he is white.

Paterson's emphatic victory provided little comfort to Republicans who have theorized that his color would prove a major liability to Goldberg in the general election, when voters will cast a single ballot for governor and lieutenant governor.

The fifth slot on the Democratic state ticket will be filled by State Comptroller Arthur Levitt, a champion vote - getter out for a fifth four-year term. He will be opposed by Republican Edward Regan, a former Buffalo councilman who was nominated by the GOP State Committee.

Paterson's opposite number will be Lt. Gov. Malcolm Wilson, and Walinsky will go against Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz. Both Wilson and Lefkowitz are veteran members of what Republicans call "the Rockefeller team."

Richardson Takes Over As New Boss of HEW

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Elliot L. Richardson was sworn in today as new secretary of the sprawling, 100,000-employe Department of Health, Education and Welfare—a job that caused frustration for many of the eight people who held it previously.

President Nixon and Richardson's immediate predecessor, Robert H. Finch, were on hand for a White House ceremony at which Richardson took the oath. Finch was shifted by Nixon to a White House counselor role.

Richardson, who has been No. 2 man at the State Department has a reputation as a top administrator but faces a major challenge to efficiently run a department that is second in size in the government only to the Defense Department.

Finch drew criticism both inside and outside the department for some of his policies and methods.

Richardson, a Bostonian, will be 50 on July 20 and was lieutenant governor and then attorney general of Massachusetts before coming to Washington as undersecretary of state.

Roscoe Turner, Speed Flier, Dies at 74

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Col. Roscoe Turner, America's greatest speed flier of the 1930s, died Tuesday after a long illness. He was 74.

Turner was the only three-time winner of the Thompson Trophy back in the prop plane era. His pet lion "Gilmore" flew 25,000 miles with Turner in the early 1930s while the flier, a native of Corinth, Miss., was building up a reputation as a racer, an air show performer and a movie stunt pilot. Turner's movie credits included "Hell's Angels" and "Flight at Midnight."

He joined the Army ambulance service in World War I but transferred to the Army Air Corps and learned to handle both observation balloons and fighter planes.

He organized an aerial circus after the war and toured the South with a program that included stunt flying, wing walking and parachute jumps.

Turner set a transcontinental passenger plane flight record of 20 hours 20 minutes from New York to Los Angeles in 1929. He cut it to 18 hours 10 minutes going back with the help of a tail wind.

He won the Thompson Trophy race in 1932 but was disqualified on a technicality. He came back and won it officially in 1934, 1938 and 1939.

He received the Harmon Trophy as America's best speed pilot in 1933 and 1939.

He formed the Roscoe Turner Aeronautical Corp., a flight school, sales and service facility, at Indianapolis Weir Cook Airport in 1939. He was board chairman at the time of his death.

An Engine Named Nerva—Another Space Step

JACKASS FLATS, Nev. (UPI)—The United States is moving ahead with the development of a rocket engine that harnesses nuclear energy instead of fire to propel men and machines through space with twice the efficiency of the best of today's rockets.

Tests last year in the desert where prospectors' donkeys once roamed climaxed a research program dating back to 1955, and showed that the engine named Nerva works.

The biggest hurdle now facing the world's only known nuclear robert project is obtaining the money needed to build and test the final flyable engine design and financing construction of a rocket stage to carry it.

David S. Gabriel, deputy manager of the Joint Space Agency-Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) project, said American taxpayers already have spent $1.2 billion on the nuclear rocket program. He estimated $750 million more will be needed to get the engine qualified for flight in 1978 or 1979, and $800 million will be needed to build the stage.

Potential Great

Nerva is still eight years from flight, but already it is being planned for a number of jobs. It could ferry men and equipment between the Earth and moon at a fraction of today's costs, it could carry heavy payloads to stationary orbit high above Earth, and it could propel unmanned probes and eventually manned ships to the planets.

"It can go anywhere, far beyond the limits we can visualize right now," Gabriel said in an interview at the nuclear propulsion office in Las Vegas, 90 miles south of the desolate test site.

"It's an entirely new kind of propulsion capability."

The only similarity between today's rockets and Nerva is that they both expel hot gases to produce thrust. They go about generating the gases in completely different ways.

The chemical engines used in all the big rockets of the United States, Russia and other countries produce thrust by burning two substances—oxygen or something containing oxygen and a fuel.

The nuclear engine uses the heat generated by nuclear fission in a reactor to vaporize liquid hydrogen and expel it at twice the velocity of chemical rockets.

Engineers measure rocket efficiency in terms of specific impulse—the length of time in seconds one pound of propellant will produce one pound of thrust. Nerva, using the lightest of the elements, has a specific impulse of 825 seconds. The best chemical rocket, burning the heavier mixture of oxygen and hydrogen, can generate one pound of thrust with one pound of fuel for 456 seconds.

Thus, the nuclear engine can carry out specific missions with less propellant than a chemical rocket and therefore carry more payload at less cost per pound. Or it can go farther, faster and maneuver more with a given amount of propellant.

The hydrogen in Nerva is heated to about 4,000 degrees by passing through a reactor four feet in diameter and six feet tall—not much bigger than a household hot water heater.

Development of a flyable reactor and its uranium fuel elements to withstand tremendous heat for long periods of time has been a difficult and expensive task, and the effort had discouraging results in the early 1960s. Reactor endurance then was on the order of five to 10 minutes.

Last year, ground version of the Nerva engine ran for a total of 3 hours and 48 minutes during a series of tests at the foot of the reddish Calico Mountains at the Nuclear Rocket Development Station.

It was started and stopped 28 times and it produced up to 55,000 pounds of thrust. Two charred wooden light poles remain at the concrete and aluminum test stand as the only evidence of the great heat generated.

Once the testing was completed, a heavily shielded, yellow and black railroad car of the test center's "Jackass and Western" moved the Nerva engine to a radiation "hot bay" in a nearby building where the engine was remotedly taken apart by men peering through a six-foot glass window.

No Radiation Hazard

There is no radiation hazard from a nuclear engine before it has been run. But once the reactor starts the chain reaction of nuclear fission to heat the hydrogen, radiation becomes a problem.

In space, a shield would protect astronauts from the engine's radiation. And after the rocket has done its job, it would be left in a sufficiently high orbit to keep it away from Earth for the 10 years that might be needed before radiation levels became harmless.

Gabriel said nuclear rocket safety has been extensively studied, and he said the Nerva could be launched from Cape Kennedy with an "essentially zero probability of an accident." Even if something did go wrong, a nuclear explosion would be impossible.

Nerva would be used as an upper stage of a Saturn 5 rocket, or it would be carried into space by an advanced launcher. It would never be operated in Earth's atmosphere.

Dr. Thomas O. Paine, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), told Congress May 19 that Nerva in a reusable rocket stage will have a key role in the space transportation system proposed for the 1980s and beyond.

As now envisioned, the ingredients of that system will be a space shuttle powered by chemical engines to ferry men and supplies between the ground and Earth orbit, the nuclear rocket to shuttle between Earth orbit and lunar orbit, and a space tug to fly between a moon orbiting station and the lunar surface.

The idea behind such a plan is that space transportation costs would be greatly reduced. With lower prices, the reasoning follows that more would be done in space. With more missions, the system's development costs would be amortized over a reasonable length of time.

As it now stands, however, only the Nerva engine assembly is an approved project. NASA, which is working on the engine itself, has $38 million in its budget for the new fiscal year for the program and the AEC will provide $43 million for work on the reactor.

The Aerojet-General Corp., of Sacramento, Calif., is prime contractor on Nerva and the Westinghouse Astronuclear Laboratory, of Pittsburgh, is the main subcontractor for the reactor.

Nixons Go West

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President and Mrs. Nixon are going to the San Clemente, Calif., White House Thursday for a stay of at least a week.

The White House said Tuesday the President will stop off at St. Louis, Mo., to address the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce, and while in California will report to the nation on his pledged halt of U.S. ground operations in Cambodia by July 1.

Penn Central Ills Send Market Down

NEW YORK (UPI)—Fears of corporate profit losses, based on the financial ills of the Penn Central Transportation Co., sent the stock market spiraling on a broad front Tuesday to mark the lowest decline since May 25.

The Dow Jones industrial average, the blue chip indicator, plunged 18 points to close at 698.11, the sharpest dive since it gave up 20.81 points last month. Total Big Board turnover was 10.8 million shares.

In the wake of the Penn Central's bankruptcy proceedings, the market reacted with jitters toward stocks which even hint at liquidation problems. The hardest hit was Chrysler Corp. which opened with a 173,000-share block four hours after trading began.

The auto company's stock, the day's most active issue with 376,000 shares crossing the tape, closed at $16.50, off $2.63 from Monday.

Rumors of poor second quarter earnings for Chrysler following a $29.4 million loss in the first quarter forced the company to issue a statement insisting it was financially sound.

In related action, the board of governors of the New York Stock Exchange voted at a special meeting to suspend until further notice dealings in certain indirect obligations on Penn Central Transportation Co.

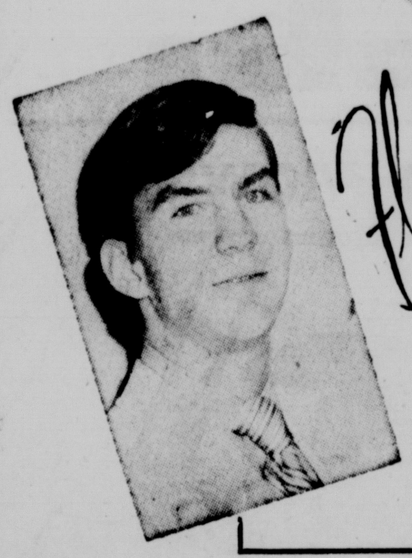

The suspension does not affect the common stock of the Penn Central Co., parent corporation of the nation's largest railroad.

Probe Report Runaway Car Headed Here

KINGSTON

Officials of the Penn-Central Railroad today continued investigation of a report that a freight box car had rolled from a siding on the Catskill Mountain branch in the vicinity of Phoenicia and headed toward this city.

According to vague reports, the car was seen rolling down grade in the Mt. Pleasant area shortly after 9 p.m. Tuesday.

City police were notified and patrolmen were assigned to keep surveilance at unguarded railroad crossings. Officers remained on watch until about 10 p.m. when they returned to their regular posts.

It was reported that probably the brakes on the car were released by some unexplainable means. One report estimated that the car was moving at about 25 miles an hour.

Police had no further report of the runaway box car.

Kingston State Police said they understood the car had been located between Shokan and Boiceville. They had no further report.

At the Penn-Central railroad freight office a spokesman said the incident was being checked. He had no information regarding the reported runaway car.

Once an oyster larva has settled down, it never moves again except to open and close its shell.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks opened lower in moderate turnover today.

Worry about corporate liquidity, triggered by the Penn Central's bankruptcy proceedings, again was expected to weigh on the market despite a move by the Federal Reserve Board (FRB) to reassure creditworthy corporate borrowers that commercial banks would have enough funds to meet demands.

The FRB late Tuesday suspended the ceiling on interest rates which commercial banks may pay on short term deposits of $100,000 or more, to permit banks to try to attract new deposits with higher interest rates.

Shortly after the opening, the U P I marketwide indicator showed a loss of 0.69 per cent on 310 issues crossing the tape. Of these, 170 declined, 61 gained.

4 Workers Die In Maine on Bridge Job

KITTERY, Maine (UPI)—A staging on a highway bridge under construction collapsed today, dropping 11 workmen to the ground.

At least four men were killed and one was left dangling by a rope as rescue crews tried to reach him with a large crane.

Four men were stranded in the bridgework until removed by firemen on aerial ladders.

The bridge was being built to carry Interstate 95 over the Piscataqua River which runs between Kittery and Portsmouth.

A spokesman at Portsmouth Hospital said three men were dead on arrival and a fourth died shortly after arrival.

The dead were not identified immediately.

Some of the injured were taken to York, Maine, Hospital. Seven ambulances were dispatched from Kittery, Portsmouth, the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard, Pease Air Force Base, and Rye, N.H.

Firemen on aerial ladders rescued men dangling on parts of the staging that remained on the bridge. Other workmen were removed by firemen from the girders.

The program is slated to run from June 29 through August 14. Every child must be accompanied by a parent in order to register.

This summer's program will provide recreation, crafts, swimming, and a period of educational games. Special activities will also be planned throughout the summer.

Will the real peanut butter please stand up.

(Hint: it's the one that's offering 10¢ off on your next jar.)

There are three of us. The famous brands. The "good" ones. But spread all three and you'll see: Two just lie there. Kind of plain and punchless. Alas, no real character to call their own.

And then there's one—the only easy-eatin' peanut butter with the grownup taste. The taste of the peanuts is so big and rich, it leaps off the bread. So creamy, it nearly spreads itself. So rich with the grow-on protein of peanuts—why, you can just watch a little guy grow on it. So why don't you?

Northern Dutchess—Three Kickoffs

RHINEBECK — The General Appeal solicitation kick-off meetings for the 1,200,000 Northern Dutchess Hospital Expansion Fund were held this week for the Pine Plains, Red Hook and Rhinebeck areas.

The meetings were conducted by the area chairmen in their respective communities to provide the volunteers who attended with the necessary campaign informative material and instructions for making their personal prospect calls. Solicitation will begin Friday.

Charles LaForge and Dr. George E. Verrilli, are serving as co-chairmen for the Rhinebeck area. The Red Hook area is headed by Dr. George F. Michael and W. Joseph Norton as co-chairman, with Mrs. Ralph J. Bowman, chairman for the Pine Plains area.

The other communities, such as Clinton Corners, Germantown, Salt Point, Staatsburg, Stanford and Hyde Park, which are in the hospital service area, also will be solicited. Annandale, Barrytown, Elizaville, Milan and Tivoli are included in the Red Hook general appeal area.

The capital funds campaign to raise $700,000 through public subscription has been divided into three phases.

It is anticipated the Hospital Family, Business and Finance, Industry, and the Thomas Thompson Trust, which comprise Phase I, will raise its $400,000 goal.

The goal for Phase II is $200,000 and is being conducted by the Special Gifts Division.

The General Appeal solicitation, which goal is $100,000, makes up Phase III. Giving in the range of $300 to $1,000 for this phase of the public solicitation will help insure reaching the $700,000 campaign goal.

Announcement also made this week of the additional enlistment of the following vice-chairmen, captains and committee members: (Red Hook area) William Bain, Mrs. Nancy Bauer, Rufus C. Bolzow, Mrs. George Greene, Mrs. Arthur Hand, Daniel E. Hagerty, Mrs. James Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Post, Mrs. Ed Rausford, Mrs. John Scorza, Arthur J. Sipperly and Mrs. Susan Stickel.

For the Rhinebeck Area: the Mmes. Charles B. Black, Ruth Bruyette, Dennis Dempster, Joanne Dierze, Edward Gumienny, Jack Rikert, Lewis Ruge, James Torpy and Robert Winne; Bud Doherty, Jack Forbes, Paul Gmeiner, Don Kelly and John Scorza; Mr. and Mrs. Gary McDonald, Philip R. Pratt, Donald Rogan, and John Varrincchio. Received today were the following enlistments: Mrs. Dorathy Buettner, Mrs. John Kane, Mrs. John Yobotsky Jr. and Mrs. John Walsh.

The building program will provide for a new 50-bed Extended Care Facility. The funds raised also will make it possible to renovate and modernize the existing patient and staff facilities which are reportedly woefully lacking in space needs and functional requirements.

The campaign which began in March, 1970, is expected to be completed in July, 1970. Ground-breaking will take place in the fall, 1970, with completion date in the spring, 1971.

ON THE WAY UP — Robert Maleonskie, food services director at the Northern Dutchess Hospital, Rhinebeck, gets ready to increase the thermometer's total of the hospital's Expansion Fund Drive to $409,213. This is the new amount raised to date, in pledges and cash, toward the $700,000 capital funds campaign being conducted by the hospital. The funds will make possible a new 50-bed Extended Care Facility and for the renovation and modernization of existing facilities at a cost of $1,200,000. The other hospital family members looking on with beaming approval are (L) Mrs. Eleonore Rector, Mrs. Peggy Smith, Henry Martin, Cathy Ware, Mrs. Rose Rider, along with Michael A. Proposal for Mideast Ceasefire Discussed by Nixon Administration

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is sounding out Israel and key Arab governments on a proposal designed to produce a Middle East cease-fire and revive U.N. efforts to negotiate a settlement.

The proposal has been discussed, according to available information, with Israel, Egypt, and Jordan. Other countries reportedly have been informed as well and Secretary of State William P. Rogers is due to discuss the proposal publicly this week.

The U.S. initiative, it is understood, basically calls for Israeli withdrawal from most of the territory captured in the 1967 war in return for Arab commitments to accept Israel's existence and respect its borders. It comes as the Nixon administration is reported ready to sell new warplanes to Israel to offset increased military support to Egypt.

Israel asked for the planes last September and has pressed particularly hard for a decision since Soviet combat pilots began flying defensive patrols inside Egypt more than two months ago.

The Nixon administration, faced with warnings that a new sale of jets to Israel would further alienate the Arabs, has decided to make the vaguest possible announcement of its readiness part of what they want.

The emphasis, therefore, will be on the peace initiative, informants indicated, although U.S. officials are not optimistic about the outcome.

Rogers and President Nixon are known to have hoped the use of Soviet pilots in Egypt would create new interest in a peaceful settlement of the long Mideast conflict—instead of touching off a new and greater crisis.

Hence, in the administration's view the new approach to the Israelis and key Arab governments—and the parallel continuation of talks with Moscow on peace issues—is designed as considerably more than a diplomatic cover for the planes sale. It is, officials insist, a serious attempt to see whether the barriers to peace on both sides may be reduced.

Although the U.S. proposal covers much the same ground as a previous plan which fell through last year, administration advisers were reported somewhat encouraged Tuesday by what Israel Defense Minister Moshe Dayan, told a luncheon meeting with journalists.

Normally a hardliner, he said Israel should be able to give up some of the territory, chiefly Egyptian, won in the 1967 six-day war in return for peace with the Arabs.

This appeared to be a public response by Dayan to U.S. pressure for concessions on the territorial issue and it was taken in Washington as indicating a positive attitude toward negotiations.

According to diplomatic informants Soviet authorities have told American officials that both of the big powers should press Middle Eastern governments to get into serious peace negotiations under the auspices of the U.N. without further delay.

The Russians are said to have argued this may be the best possible time for action.

The Pill Warning—Medical Group to Fight It

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Medical Association has promised a broad legal and legislative battle against a plan by the Food and Drug Administration to include a health warning in packages of contraceptive pills.

But FDA Commissioner Charles C. Edwards defended the use of a lay language warning about oral contraceptives as a "communications insurance policy" in the best interests of the patient.

The AMA's House of Delegates, meeting Tuesday at the organization's 119th annual convention, approved a resolution attacking the FDA plan as "a dangerous departure from present practice."

Dr. Edwards announced on June 10 that the health warning should be included with packages of the pill within 90 days.

The warning would point out possible dangerous side effects, such as an increased risk of blood clotting.

The AMA resolution asserted the proposal "intrudes on the patient-physician relationship" and would "interfere with the physician's decision to prescribe drugs by exerting undue influence."

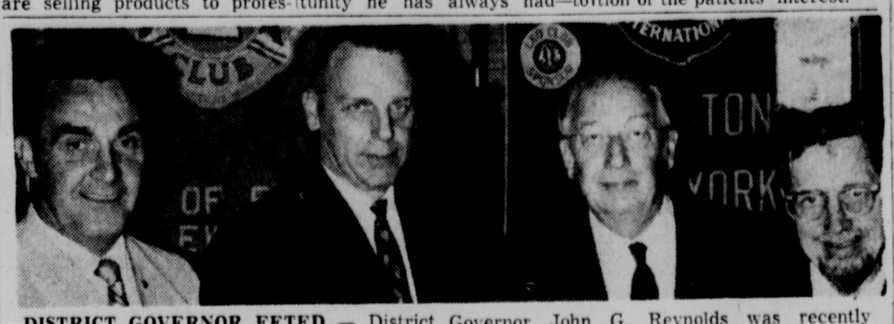

Edwards, speaking to the Midwest Pharmaceutical Advertising Club, told the drug industry it would be "enlightened self interest" to supply more useful information about drugs in its medical communications to doctors.

"I think," the FDA chief said, "we tend to lose track of the fact that you are not selling new cars or TV sets, but rather you are selling products to professionals whose only reasons for being is the health and well-being of the people."

As for the required warning on contraceptive pills, he said:

"Our action was intended to supplement rather than intrude upon the normal doctor-patient relationship, and indeed in our judgment need not intrude. The physician has the same opportunity he has always had—to communicate with the patient at the time the prescription is written.

"The provision for the lay language insert is, rather, a kind of single 'communications insurance policy' in the patients' interest. The essential consideration in this case—for a physician, for a manufacturer, and for FDA—had to be the protection of the patients' interest."

A HIJACKER'S GESTURE — Haxhi Hasan Xyaert, 27, an American of Albanian origin, gestures to newsmen after he used a .22 caliber pistol to hijack a Pan American Boeing 707 to Cairo on Monday. The plane, with 133 passengers and a crew of ten, was on a flight from Beirut to Rome when Xyaert forced Capt. John Burn to fly to Cairo. (UPI RADIOPHOTO).

Mrs. Brinnier is vice-chairman of the Ulster County Republican Committee and a charter member and past officer of the Saugerties Republican Club, Inc. She has served on many civic and organizational groups on a local and state level.

211 Graduated from High School

SAUGERTIES

Saugerties Central Schools held its 74th annual Commencement on Sunday, June 21, with President of the Board of Education Robert Herb presenting diplomas to 211 graduates. An outdoor ceremony had been planned but threatening skies caused school officials to move inside just ten minutes before the ceremonies were to have started.

The theme for the graduation exercises was, "A Time For Beginning". Senior Class Vice President David Reinhard presented speakers.

Michaela Graham, salutatorian, emphasized the importance of influences on the lives of the graduates and expressed the hope that these would tend to help the graduates themselves to be influential in the world of tomorrow.

Class President Richard Mayone stated, "If the Class of 1970 could be granted just one wish, it would be that we have the courage and desire to provide opportunities for America's youth yet to come. We hope we will have the strength to take leadership's path and that we will not shrink into oblivion and let someone else be the leader. If we falter, we should remember Andrew Jackson's words that, 'One man with courage makes a majority'".

Valdictorian David Snyder launched a plea for more interest in school affairs on the part of citizens and for improved communications between the various groups involved in the educational process.

Principal Daniel Y. Lee expressed his appreciation to the students for their cooperation in helping him through his first year as principal and warned them that tomorrow they would be part of the "establishment."

Led by David Moulton, director of vocal music, the Senior High School chorus presented "Scarborough Fair" and Choose Something Like a Star."

In his remarks, Superintendent of Schools Dr. Dexter O. Arnold, stressed that the record of the past generation including the current, is not all bad. He pointed out that we have made our way through history's worst depression, fought in one of history's worst wars, and then, following the war, had the courage and the compassion to rebuild what we had been forced to destroy.

"We are passing on to the graduates a healthier world than we had known, a world with more leisure time and greater output with less work, a greater opportunity to travel, and a significantly improved communications system which brings the news of the world to us within minutes." Your generation, as a result is the most singularly blessed of all generations, the best informed, the best educated, the most affluent, and the healthiest . . . you are the most challenged group of young people in our history. The world is not only one beset with problems, but also a world bursting with opportunities.

"We don't solve problems by running away from them or abandoning our values. He said, "Certain truths are immutable. There are truths that have stood the test to time, the truths laid down in the Ten Commandments, the truths that give rise to codes of ethics among civilized peoples, the truths that cause men to speak of integrity, honor, and virtue. When men abandon these truths, they lose all sense of value — they live a life in death, a life without conscience."

Seniors who won prizes and awards were recognized by Dr. Arnold during the ceremony.

The superintendent recognized the 20 graduates who were winners of the 1970 Regents Scholarships: Lindley Churchill, Christopher Detweiler, Joseph Ellis, Marie Francello, David Gallenz, Margaret Hess, Allen Hoey, Thomas Keefe, Janet Klomm, Daniel Lamb, Diane Pfleghaar, Jacqueline A. Quick, Victoria Roshetski, Richard Sickler, David Snyder, Mar, Lynn Garrison, Michaela Graham, Bernard Rice, Gary Shultis and Frank Varone.

National Merit Scholarship winners David Gallenz and Christopher Detweiler, and Semi-Finalist Marie Francello were also recognized by the superintendent.

Dr. Arnold expressed his appreciation for the patience and understanding shown by the parents and friends of the graduates when arrangements were suddenly changed because of rain. Special ticket holders filled the auditorium and the overflow crowd was seated in classrooms where the speeches were heard over the loudspeaking system.

A Departure From Tradition At Opening

POUGHKEEPSIE

In a departure from traditional ribbon cutting ceremonies, Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. used an oxyacetylene torch to slice through a steel chain and officially open the expanded facilities of Cryo-Dyne Corporation recently in Poughkeepsie.

The ceremony preceded an open house reception and tour of the new facilities for an estimated 250 CryoDyne customers and Poughkeepsie civic and industrial leaders. The corporation has its headquarters in Bridgeport, Conn. and branch operations in Danbury, Conn., Elmsford, N. Y. and 253 Innis Avenue, Poughkeepsie.

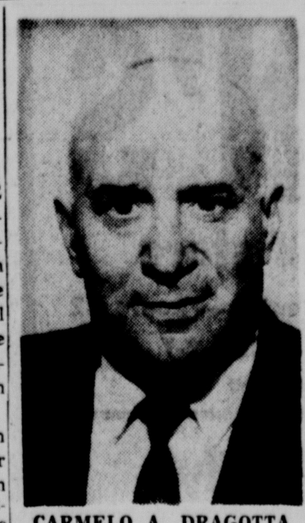

The company is the distributor for Airco welding products and industrial gases in the Mid-Hudson valley and eastern Connecticut and serves a wide range of industries, such as electronics manufacturers, metal fabricators, construction firms and research laboratories.

Harry B. Elliott, president of CryoDyne, said that completion of the 3,200 square foot addition to the Poughkeepsie plant more than doubles the available space for operations here. The modern steel building contains a sales showroom and additional office and warehouse space. A portion of the older building has been converted to a modern customer training and demonstration center for various welding and cutting processes and equipment.

CryoDyne's Poughkeepsie operation was formerly the Hudson Valley Welding Supply Corp. which was purchased by the company in 1964 and is now known as the Hudson Valley Welding Division of CryoDyne.

USEFUL PLANT

All parts of the corn plant can be used in industry: The stalk for paper and wallboard, husks for filling material, cobs for fuel, the grain for human consumption, feed or as a raw material, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica.

THE ALBANY MALL TAKING SHAPE

(UPI Telephoto)

Glistening Albany Mall— Obstacles and Criticism

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller is erecting a spectacular complex of glistening, marbled-faced state office buildings that has soared in cost from an original estimate of $250 million to nearly $1 billion in eight years.

Why is this project, known as the South Mall, costing four times as much as expected? And what motivates the Republican governor to forge ahead despite obstacles and criticism?

Rockefeller's official defense of the mall is that it is a device to revive the state's decaying old capital city through the hypo of grand-scale urban renewal.

But the climbing costs have become a target of criticism as Rockefeller enters his campaign for re-election to a fourth term.

When the plan was unveiled eight years ago, architects estimated the eventual cost at $250 million and set a construction timetable looking to completion of the 11 buildings in 1967.

Since then the project has been enlarged and its progress impeded by political haggling and construction difficulties. The result is that officials have put off the the expected completion until 1974-75 and have revised the cost estimates repeatedly to the present total of $745 million.

State Comptroller Arthur Levitt, a leading Democratic critic of the mall, insists that the final cost will be closer to $1 billion. And, he adds, interest on borrowings arranged by Rockefeller to finance the work will push the over-all total to $1.5 billion.

"The objective," says Levitt, "has been to create a thing of surpassing beauty. Well, I'd have to say that New York State deserves that kind of capital. But, the question is—can we afford it?"

Clearly Rockefeller believes the state can and should afford it.

The partially completed structures of the mall, rising from a cleared slum area just south of the Capitol, have transformed the skyline of this old Dutch settlement in dramatic fashion. Following the state's lead, city fathers and private developers have begun to erect new buildings, create new housing projects and otherwise tidy up the mall's periphery.

Seeing all this, Rockefeller predicts that one day tourists will flock to Albany to bask in the glow of "a state capital in which all can take pride."

But critics focus on the mounting cost of the mall and weigh it against an ever-tightening state budget squeeze and a tax structure that extracts more money from New Yorkers than residents of any other state pay.

How did costs get where they are?

The man in charge of building the mall, retired four-star Gen. Cortlandt V. R. Schuyler, state commissioner of general services, offers this explanation of the mall's increasing cost:

In the first place, the $250 million figure was an architects' "guesstimate" based on the amount of office space that would be supplied—3.2-million square feet. Later, when they got around to the actual design, they agreed that the project would cost at least $400 million.

About the same time, Rockefeller abandoned his plan to finance the work from cash appropriations. He worked out a financing scheme under which the County of Albany would float bonds to pay for the construction, then lease the buildings to the state, which would take ownership of the structures in the year 2004. That brought in the element of interest costs.

At first, the Democratic-controlled city and county government resisted the idea of building the mall, complaining that it would cut off tax revenue from the 98½ acres of property to be taken over. The area also was rich in Democratic votes. The final settlement included a generous payment "in lieu of taxes," but the result was a delay of nearly two years—while, as Schuyler points out, building costs climbed.

Construction finally began in the fall of 1966. Contracts were let and work crews swarmed over the project, often getting in each other's way. The main problem was that so much was to be built at the same time in a relatively confined area.

The design calls for construction of a huge platform supporting 10 buildings and housing a subsurface structure, plus underground parking space for 3,300 cars. It includes a 44-story office tower building, tallest in the state outside New York City, and a half-egg-shaped meeting center. The buildings are to be surrounded by terraced walkways with reflecting water pools and foantains.

Rockefeller also decided that a new arterial highway system would be needed to handle mall traffic. The state thus came up with a $38-million highway network featuring an $8.7-million high-level bridge across the Hudson River aiming right into the heart of the mall.

Schuyler hired an outside consulting firm, the George Fuller Co., to supervise the project. Fuller was supposed to prescribe cost estimates for the various contracts and coordinate the efforts of contractors.

What happened was that a few of the contractors failed to complete their work on time. So other contractors were delayed. There were jurisdictional disputes among labor unions and occasional strikes, although none prolonged.

Contractors complained that the delays had wiped out their profit margins, since costs were climbing at a rate of 10 to 12 per cent a year. They demanded adjustments in their contracts.

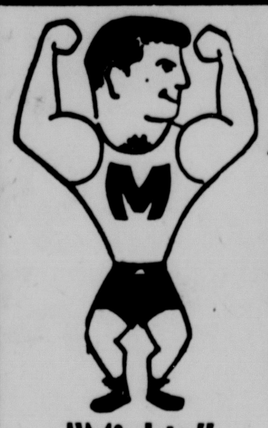

Last year, at Rockefeller's behest, the legislature enacted an "equitable adjustment act" expressly to cover the Mall problem. It provides that, if a contractor can show he encountered extra costs through no fault of his own, the state would be authorized to reimburse him.

Meanwhile, the plan for the Mall was enlarged to five million square feet of space. Among other things, Rockefeller decided to build a Health Department laboratory in the underground portion and to enlarge the meeting center. That meant the platform had to be redesigned in part. Schuyler says this added $77 million to the cost.

Steeple, Anyone?

BUFFALO (AP) — The Girl Scouts, who usually sell cookies, are giving a steeple, free of charge.

The Girl Scout Council of Buffalo and Erie County is offering the steeple, which is on top of its headquarters, to anyone who wants it. To make a new addition to the structure presentable, general contractors say the steeple would have to be removed.

Cooper Quits Job With Space Program

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—L. Gordon Cooper, one of the three original astronauts still in the corps, has announced his resignation from the space program to become a Washington business executive.

When Cooper leaves the astronauts corps July 31, only Alan B. Shepard and chief astronaut Donald K. "Deke" Slayton, will remain from the original Mercury astronauts.

Cooper leaves the space corps without ever fulfilling his ultimate goal—landing on the moon. Space center sources said Cooper was never given a chance at an Apollo flight because of his outspoken remarks rather than his flying ability.

"He just stepped on the toes of too many NASA officials," one spokesman said.

Of the seven original astronauts, only Shepard now remains in active flight status. He will be the commander of Apollo 14, America's next moon landing attempt.

Cooper said he will establish a new convention center and permanent exposition near the nation's capital promoting products from all 50 states. He will also be a board member of an export firm called Intersales, Ltd.

Two Youngsters Nabbed at Britts

KINGSTON

Security officers at Britts store in the Kingston Shopping Plaza on Tuesday afternoon picked up a boy and a girl, both 13, after they allegedly stole merchandise from the store.

The girl was accused of taking men's clothing including a shirt, underwear and other articles, from the store. An officer said she carried a sweater over an arm and under it she had a bag in which she allegedly put the articles taken from counters. The merchandise was valued at $8.35.

The boy was accused of taking a can of paint worth 79 cents. All merchandise was recovered.

The girl and boy, who were picked up in unrelated incidents, were turned over to Sergeant Joseph Kivlan of the Juvenile Aid Bureau of the city police department for further investigation.

HELP THE CAUSE — Mrs. Ethel Geuss, R.N. Kingston (L) and Mrs. Alice Stetka, R.N., Cochecton Center obesrve with Dr. Henry C. Eichelmann of Port Ewen, steering committee chairman, the message: "Kick the Habit. It's a matter of life and breath. Your Christmas Seal Association can help." Recently key nursing personnel in the Counties of Greene, Sullivan and Ulster served by the Catskill Region TB and RD Association, were sent the anti-smoking leaflets "Me Quit Smoking. Why?" and "Me Quit Smoking. How?". Nurses are among the professional health workers encouraged to help people Kick the Habit and to help show them how to do it. Mrs. Phyllis Maiuri, R.N., Palenville, is also a nurse representative on the Kick the Habit Committee.

Tennessee Politics— Intriguing Contests

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)— Mix together a couple of millionaires, a gaggle of country music stars, and generous helpings of Southern fried chicken. Add a dash of spice from the White House and Hyannis Port and you have a recipe for Tennessee politics, 1970 style.

This divergent state of the Grand Ole Opry and the Atomic Energy Commission, promises to field some of this year's most intriguing political contests.

Chief principals include two nationally-known businessmen, former fried chicken king John Jay Hooker Jr., 39, and Genesco's Maxey Jarman, 65; Senate liberal Albert Gore, 62, one of the chief critics of the Nixon administration; old cowboy singing star Tex Ritter, 64, and congressional conservative William E. Brock, 39, a top Nixon supporter.

Growing Republican strength and the apparent dismantling of the Democratic political organization that has run the state for nearly two decades make the races all the more interesting.

President Nixon has a deep interest in the Senate race and probably would like nothing more than to see the silver haired Gore, a ranking member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, ousted from the seat he has held since 1953.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., will be paying more than passing attention to the gubernatorial bid of Hooker, who held a national post in John F. Kennedy's 1960 presidential campaign and was special assistant to then Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy in 1962.

Country music lovers will have the most fun of all.

Ritter has enlisted the aid of country superstar Johnny Cash and old-time fiddler Roy Acuff in his bid for the Senate and prospects are good that the Nashville sound will echo from the hazy Smoky Mountains to the muddy Mississippi as the campaign waxes hot.

The primary battles have been low key to date.

Candy millionaire Brock is taking a bead on Gore's Senate seat but faces primary opposition from Ritter, who has demonstrated to the dismay of his opponents that he can discuss foreign affairs and domestic issues with the same facility that he drawls out "High Noon."

Those who remember seeing Ritter in the old western movies and now on television may be surprised to know he holds a degree in political science from the University of Texas and is a successful businessman with restaurant, music publishing and recording company interests.

Brock and Ritter have more or less ignored each other, aiming their campaign barbs at Gore and his opposition to Nixon's nomination of Judges G. Harrold Carswell and Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Gore acknowledges that his votes against the two Southerners have hurt him politically. But he is counting on overcoming this with his support of such "bread and meat" issues as increased Social Security benefits and a hike in personal income tax exemptions.

The flamboyant Hooker, a tall and lanky lawyer with a penchant for dark English suits replete with vest and heavy gold chain, has been billed by the other candidates as the "man to beat" in the governor's race. His main opposition in the Democratic primary apparently will come from former State Sen. Stanly Snodgrass, 49, of Nashville.

Gov. Buford Ellington has pledged neutrality in the primary. But other powers in the party are taking sides. Some are lining up behind Hooker despite his criticism of Ellington and former Gov. Frank Clement, who was killed in an auto accident last year.

Others are lining up behind the other two Democratic contenders—Robert L. Taylor, 54, of Memphis, who resigned from the state court of appeals to make the race, and Ralph Waldo Emerson, 37, of Greeneville, a former state director of industrial development.

Republicans in the governor's race are Jarman, former chairman of the board of the giant Genesco Company; Claude Robertson, 37, a Knoxville lawyer and former state GOP chairman; William L. Jenkins, 33, a small-town (Rogersville, pop. 3,618) East Tennessee attorney who last year became the first Republican since Reconstruction to be elected speaker of the state House of Representatives and Dr. Winfield Dunn, 42, a Memphis dentist and longtime political leader in populous Sehlby County.

'Best Parade Ever' Planned in Kingston

KINGSTON — The Kingston City Recreation Department will sponsor its fourth annual Children's Day Parade according to an announcement made by Andrew J. Murphy III, superintendent of recreation and Ronald F. Gabriele, summer activities director.

The parade will be held on Wednesday, July 29 at 7 p.m. The parade route will again be from the area of Kingston High School to Dietz Stadium.

This fourth annual parade will be the largest recreation department parade ever held and it may well be one of the largest parades ever held in the City of Kingston according to Murphy and Gabriele. Recreation department officials have been planning and setting up the parade for the past two months. At this point, it looks like more than 10 divisions will be included in the line of march.

Any groups, organizations, or individuals desiring to be in the parade may contact Ron Gabriele.

Red Hook Central Graduates 103 Seniors

By TIM SCHUSTER.

RED HOOK

Red Hook Central School graduated 103 seniors in Monday night ceremonies.

Four student speakers highlighted the Red Hook commencement. Salutatorian Patricia Castle stressed the importance of each individual's responsibility to others. She said, "We cannot stand by ourselves, alienated from others. We must be involved with other people; we must feel their feelings, think their thoughts."

John Maynard, president of the Student Council, spoke on the responsibility for involvement in the governing process imposed on the individual by a democratic society. He said the "silent majority" should not remain silent, and that true democracy is not a final goal, but an "ever-changing challenge."

Luther Sargent, president of the class of 1970, emphasized that "America is currently passing through an Exodus experience..." which will "...serve the birth of a new American nation which will go out from the familiar to the new, from bondage to freedom, from comfort to privation, from security to risk."

Valedictorian Karen Hempel said that overlying man's responsibility to himself is his responsibility to God, being his brother's keeper. She added, "We regret the parting, and yet we look forward eagerly to all that tomorrow holds."

Awards, presented by High School Principal Richard Barringer, included announcements of 14 Regents Scholarship winners, two National Merit Scholarships, three National Merit Letters of Commendation, 44 Regents Diplomas including ten with honor, and about 70 per cent who plan to continue their education at the college level.

Award winners were: Elks Good Citizenship Award to Ronald Camisasca and Michael Ellis; DAR Good Citizens Award to Patricia Bowman and Patricia Castle; Clermont Fire Company Awards to Daniel Hoch, Catherine Collins, Linda Dapcic.

Philip White Memorial Award to Joan Karpowich; VFW Post Award for art to Joan Karpowich; VFW Post Award for business to Linda Smith; National Merit Scholarship Winners Karen Hempel by IBM and Peter Collins by Western Printing.

The Sunday night Baccalaureate program at Red Hook had Father Martin Biglin as speaker. He said that youth speaks to mankind because it is a vital part of mankind, and that youth needs and seeks a challenge.

Obtain Order To Halt Strike On Car Arrivals

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Automobile Transport Inc. obtained a restraining order Tuesday to end a strike by Teamsters Union drivers which delayed delivery of new Ford cars and trucks to several points in the Northeast.

The company, at the same time, agreed to reinstate, pending a hearing, a driver fired after refusing to make a delivery to Graham Ford in Schenectady, where union salesmen, also represented by the Teamsters, are on strike.

Members of Teamsters Local 294 went on strike at Automobile Transport during the weekend to protest the dismissal.

Coleman High School Graduates Hear St. John

KINGSTON — Recalling his own high school graduation, Howard C. St. John, addressing the graduates of John A. Coleman High School, contrasted the advice generally given in the early 1940's with that of today.

Then, it was to "get out of this area." Today, he advised, even urged young people to stay in this Hudson River Region and become involved in its tremendous growth. All must take an active interest in party politics and government, St. John said, and ought to strive to be leaders in planning the growth of the area so that it will be orderly and in the best interests of future generations.

St. John urged the graduates to join the elite group of "uncommon" men—those who have the courage to "stand up and be counted." This he explained, does not mean being mere nonconformists who have to debate everything. Such persons become "cranks, not leaders." The "uncommon man," on the other hand, has the wisdom to distinguish between trivial things where compromise may be reached, and those matters of principle upon which one must take a stand. He will consider principle above safety, integrity over advancement, and courage over cost. Such were the qualities of great persons of the past.

HOWARD C. ST. JOHN

There is a choice, St. John said, bttween remaining safe and silent, or speaking out honestly and earning enemies. If one does not stand up for his convictions, he said, that person will never fulfill the best that is in him. The person who stands up may, of course, get knocked down, but it is the man "flattened by conformity" who stays down. Those who have the courage to speak up, St. John said, may sometimes be 100 per cent wrong, but they have, nonetheless, been thinking and have challenged others to think.

In conclusion, the speaker urged the graduates to be independent thinkers, to make "the bold choice," to accept controversy, and to be willing to stand upon their convictions.

The following honors were merited by members of the graduating class: A gold medal for excellence in studies, Marilyn Sauer; a gold medal for excellence in four years of Social Studies, Eileen Dempsey; a gold medal for excellence in four years of English and French, Marilyn Sauer; a gold medal for excellence in Art, Linda Saccoman; a gold medal for excellence in secretarial science, Diane Zelie; a $50 United States Savings Bond presented by the Kingston Democratic Men's Club for excellence in American History, Catherine Toye; The Bausch and Lomb Honorary Science award for conspicuous achievement in the study of science and a medal for excellence in mathematics, Marilyn Sauer; and the Generoso Pope College Assistance Scholarships of $300 each awarded by Columbus Citizens' Committee, Mary Ann Cwill and and Patrick Harder.

Diplomas were awarded with first honors to those students who have maintained an average of A or above during their four years of high school. Graduates awarded with first honors were Lloyd S. Hoffstatter, Linda Anne Saccoman, Marilyn Jean Sauer, Jane Eileen Schiller, Kathy Lynn Smith, Catherine Helene Toye and Diane Marie Zelie.

Diplomas awarded with second honors to those who have maintained B-plus averaged for the four years to Marilyn Therese Argulewicz, Elissa Armater, Mary Ann Cwill, Leslie Marie Davis, Eileen Anne Dempsey, Sheila Marie Dixon, Nellene Ann Donovan, Judith Mary Fuller, Marianne Geuss, Linda Dolores Kelley, Michael Tatarzewski, Nancy Lynn Whalen, Robert F. Pass Dog Law or Resign Town Posts...Estes

By NANCY SULLIVAN

KINGSTON

In a plea to prevent "this kind of senseless carnage in the future," Roy Estes, a former member of the Town of Kingston Planning Board, issued a statement concerning an accident involving Mrs. Betty Hung and her two children, Catherine and Robert.

Kingston State Police reporting on the one-car mishap 3:30 p.m. Friday said Mrs. Hung was proceeding west on Sawkill Road when she swerved to avoid striking a dog that was crossing the highway. The car ran off the right shoulder of the highway and struck a tree. The car was reportedly demolished, state police noted.

Troopers said all three, Mrs. Hung and her children, Catherine, 10 months and Robert, 6 were injured and taken to Benedictine Hospital.

Early reports indicated that the infant girl sustained a fractured skull and severe lacerations of the face and head and her brother, suffered a cerebral concussion and lacerations. Mrs. Hung also sustained a cerebral concussion and other head injuries as well as multiple lacerations of the face and head, troopers reported. However they were all reported in fair condition today and her two small children lie at the hospital.

Estes stated, "Last Friday afternoon Mrs. Hung swerved her car to avoid striking a dog on Sawkill Road. Today, she broken in Benedictine Hospital, and the terrible anguish that the Hung family is suffering is partly because of my failure as a member of the Town Planning Board of the Town of Kingston.

"If I had been more persevering or somehow more persuasive in my fight for this spring's proposed dog ordinance, perhaps this pointless tragedy could have been prevented. But the shame I bear is nothing beside the shame which should fall on the heads of those Town Board members who defeated that proposed law and, incidentally, also stopped a similar proposed ordinance two years ago. On both these occasions they were repeatedly warned of the likelihood of this sort of accident. They were, in fact, petitioned by many of the town's people to pass the 1970 ordinance; but they would not.

"In view of what has happened, I now call on them to pass the dog law and prevent this kind of senseless carnage in the future. If they will not at least do this, then I call for them to resign their posts on the Town Board. Conscience demands it."

Estes told The Freeman that he resigned his post on the Town Planning Board about a month ago because of the board's "intransigence on the dog ordinance." According to Estes, the Town Planning Board drafts legislation and at the time of debate on the proposed dog ordinance, "feelings ran quite high."

The proposed dog ordinance was originally drafted "around February," Estes said, with two versions — the first being more stringent than the second. The ordinance came to a public hearing and was voted down. According to Estes, the issue of the liability of this and other dog related accidents were explored at the public hearing.

Estes said that there were two petitions submitted concerning the dog ordinance. One petition was for the proposed ordinance and the other against. There were approximately the same number of signatures on each petition.

When the proposed ordinance came to a vote by the Town Board following the public hearing, Estes said that Town Supervisor Donald Dolan voted for it; Justice Robert E. Ferrigan abstained; Justice Richard Alberstadt abstained; Councilman Karl Schuerzinger voted against it; and Councilman Leo Stauble voted against it.

Counterattack Against Village Board

By JON POWERS

ELLENVILLE

DeWitt Clinton, Ellenville village trustee who leveled charges of election irregularities against the local Office of Economic Opportunity two weeks ago was in turn raked over the coals Tuesday night by Ellenville officials of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Clarence E. McGill, president of the Ellenville NAACP, denied that the local OEO office printed only the names of Democratic candidates for village offices on a sample voting machine set up in the town hall. Stating that the Ellenville NAACP will take "full responsibility" for the occurrence, McGill added, "OEO and its employes did nothing more than we did and that was to encourage poor people to vote for the candidates who favored public housing."

While defending OEO, McGill also took time out to level his own charges against Clinton and the entire Village Board. He specifically cited the case of Paul Boucher, former Ellenville village manager, who resigned from his posititon after an investigation was ordered to examine irregularities. McGill was particularly incensed because Clinton and other Board members voted to pay Boucher an additional $1,000 after he submitted his resignation.

McGill also charged that Clinton has not met his responsibilities "with respect to relocation of families, individuals and businesses displayed by the Urban Renewal Program."

The NAACP president also criticized Clinton's recommendation that the new Route 209 be routed through a residential area of Ellenville. McGill charged Clinton with "complete lack of concern for the residents," many of whom, according to McGill are "minorities and poor people."

In this same instance, McGill hinted that Clinton had personal motives for suggesting the Route 209 change. "What makes his (Clinton's) business so important," asked McGill, "that it should remain on its present site and a few dozen families should be uprooted and scattered?" McGill concluded this phase of his attack against Clinton by stating, "it seems Mr. Clinton would like to drive all minorities and poor working people out of town."

Village Trustee Clinton at the April 30 public hearing on the proposed Route 209 realignment, announced he favored alternate route 2 because route 1 "would wipe out this business," referring to Marvin Millwork Inc., on Canal Street.

McGill cited several other instances where Clinton or the Village Board allegedly committed "irregularities" and then concluded by saying, "Mr. Clinton is charging irregularities where none exist in order to keep public attention away from some of the 'irregularities' he is personally and publicly involved with."

Since Clinton's charges that the OEO office had prompted minority voters to vote for the Democratic ticket in the March elections, the Regional OEO office in New York City conducted its own investigation. It was first reported by the New York Office that the allegations were without substance and then, several days later, the Washington office admitted there were, indeed, grounds for suspicion. The seesawing battle of accusations has continued between Clinton and OEO, with both sides adamantly sticking to their opening arguments. Now the NAACP has joined the skirmish, claiming that minorities are merely "taught to vote and fight for what they need to live as decent citizens."

In the meantime, everyone is waiting for the results of the investigation, which undoubtedly won't please everyone. Official announcement of the findings are expected to be released by late next week.

Rhinebeck Mason Accorded Honors

A "first ever" honor will be bestowed upon a Rhinebeck Mason Sunday when membership in the International Honorary Legion of Honor is given to Ronald F. MacDonald.

The Legion of Honor is an elite body of Masons and Senior DeMolays individually cited for outstanding service to man, country and DeMolay. The Legion includes such notables as Chet Huntley, Walter Cronkite, and Chief of Staff of the USAF John P. McConell.

MacDonald, himself never a DeMolay, has been active in the Order for more than two years as a chapter advisor in Rhinebeck. He currently serves as the chairman of the advisory Council here. He was also recently appointed acting district deputy of the five-chapter Hudson Valley District. Elected last January, MacDonald is curently serving as the master of the Rhinebeck Masonic Lodge.

RHINEBECK, The International Supreme Council of the Order of DeMolay voted in closed session recently to bestow this honor on MacDonald.

The Legion of Honor award cities him for this efforts in rebuilding an almost defunct Rhinebeck Chapter. William F. William, the Deputy Executive officer, said of him, "If it hadn't been for the extreme dedication of Ron MacDonald it is doubtful that the Rhinebeck Chapter would have lasted six months."

A public investitutre conferring the honor upon MacDonald will be held this Sunday in the Rhinebeck Masonic Temple. Officiating at the ceremony will be Robert M. Walker, executive officer for New York State.

MacDonald is a staff engineer and consultant with IBM in Poughkeepsie, and has lived in Rhinebeck since 1963.

Nixon Dislikes Aides' Criticism

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Backstairs at the White House:

President Nixon has left little doubt about his feelings toward criticism from subordinates in his administration. He doesn't like it.

Two high-level officials—Education Commissioner James E. Allen Jr. and Assistant Commerce Secretary John N. Davis—already have been fired. And Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel, who criticized the President for failing to listen to youthful dissenters, probably will be leaving soon.

Informed sources in the White House confirm that Hickel's relationship with the President is strained and say they expect the former Alaska governor to leave the cabinet within a couple of months.

Allen, a highly regarded educator who formerly headed New York State schools, openly denounced the President's decision to send U.S. troops into Cambodia.

Davis was fired the day after he criticized White House assistants in a speech in New York City last week for the advice they were giving the President on import policies. Even more damaging, he said the only way he could reach the President was through speaking out publicly.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler recently outlined the President's thinking on dissent within the administration.

"The President, both in practice and theory, believes in an open administration . . and encourages expressions of views," Ziegler said.

"But I think I should go beyond that to say that once a decision is made by the President and that decision becomes policy, any extensive public discussion of non-support becomes an individual matter and it is for the individual . . to determine on his own whether or not he, in good conscience, can remain and carry on his normal duties."

Several lower level policy makers have consulted their consciences and quit. Dr. Henry A. Kissinger's national security staff lost several of its young experts. Dr. Daniel P. Moynihan has lost at least one man from his domestic affairs staff and there have been other resignations in various government departments.

Hickel's criticism, coming at a time when the President badly needed support—he was under heavy attack for his Cambodian policy and facing a massive student demonstration outside his window—it left an indelible impression on the relationship between the two men, a relationship that never had been a close one.

The White House is expected to announce plans soon for creating an environmental protection agency to develop and police anti-pollution laws. This would cut into some of the enforcement responsibilities of the Interior Department.

It would not be surprising if Hickel coordinated his decision to leave the government with this diminution of the responsibilities of his department.

Search Continues For Man Lost In Adirondacks

BLOOMINGDALE, N.Y. (UPI) —State Police resumed searching at daylight in dense Adirondack woods north of here in Franklin County for Eugene F. Gadway, 34, a Plattsburgh post office employe from West Chazy who was last seen Monday.

Troopers said the possibility of bringing a helicopter in was being discussed.

Gadway had gone fishing with Thomas Mayhew and three of their sons near the Bobcat Club at Blue Lake in the town of Franklin Monday.

Mayhew and the boys returned to the club later in the day, saying Gadway had taken a short cut to Beaver Dam to continue fishing. The search began when Gadway failed to return that night as he said he would.

Gadway was an expert woodsman, according to troopers.

PRESIDENTIAL LETTER — Mrs. Larry Kolts of Sawkill reads letter from President Richard M. Nixon commending she and her soldier husband for their support of his move into Cambodia. Mrs. Kolts gave her views eloquently on a recent Open Mike broadcast which was sent on tape to the President. In the letter from Nixon, the Kolts were cited for their encouragement and endorsement of government policies on the fighting front. Kolts has been stationed in Vietnam since April at a post outside of Saigon. (Freeman photo by Haines).

Priest Combines Religion and Ragtime

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Rev. Joseph Dustin is a big, genial man with a prayer in his heart, music in his fingers and ragtime in his soul.

He is riverboat jazz in a clerical collar, rollicking show business in a cassock and gaudy salesmanship in the somber garb of a mission priest.

Like his mother before him, he may spend Saturday evening on the bandstand, but he'll spend Sunday morning on his knees.

Father Dustin was a musician long before he became a priest, and the banjo his mother gave him and the songs his father taught him have gone with him all the way.

Today, in addition to his clerical duties with Holy Redeemer parish in Detroit, he is a banjo strumming businessman, head of his own nonprofit recording company and music publishing house, nationally-recognized jazz musician, composer and recording artist.

His first album contains such nonclerical favorites as "California Here I Come," "There'll Be Some Changes Made," and "Cuddle Up A Little Closer," in addition to six of his own tunes. With him are Stu Sanders and Neal Reid on trombone; Herb Rosin on drums; Nina Santa on piano; Fritz Moore on tenor sax; John Baldori on trumpet and Pete Baldori on bass.

When they swing out, the sounds might well be an echo across the years of Mamie Dustin's south St. Louis band and the vaudeville song-and-dance of Edward Dustin. For it was from his parents, Mamie and Edward—later a motion picture producer—that young Joe inherited a song and it was with Mamie's band that he learned to pluck a tune, first on the mandolin he found in a trash can, later on the banjo his mother gave him.

As would her son some years later, Mamie Dustin walked in two worlds, directing her jazz for Saturday night dances and playing the organ for Sunday Mass at St. Theresa's and Blessed Sacrament.

And, like his mother, Father Dustin is careful that his own two worlds do not overlap.

"I'm old-fashioned," he says with a broad grin. "If I'm supposed to preach a sermon, I'll preach it from the pulpit, not from a bandstand.

"This isn't a medium for a message."

Even so, he has found that music speaks to all men, helps melt the walls between them.

"Many of the people I have met through our performances have come to me with their problems of unhappy marriages or personal doubts. And sometimes, by talking together, they have been helped.

"Musicians, you know, are tremendous people, great people. They're sensitive. They're giving."

Father Dustin, an affable man himself, also has found that in the toe-tapping, rollicking sounds of ragtime, people put aside even their philosophical differences and play in mental, as well as musical harmony.

"At one time, I was in a combo with an Episcopal priest, a Negro baptist minister and a Jewish rabbi. We were dubbed the 'Clerical Four.'

"You know, even without talking religion, you can get people of different faiths together."

But to Father Dustin, music is more than a happy pastime to while away a priest's few leisure hours. It is, to him, "the very air I breathe."

Hints From Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Many of us have small juice glasses or water glasses with straight sides that could be stacked two together if they would not become stuck.

A small square of tissue paper placed between the glasses will prevent sticking.

The papers can be left on the shelf for reuse. Really saves cabinet space by doing this.

Dear Heloise:

Today I found another use for that ever versatile NYLON NET.

We live very close to salt water and have a great deal of trouble with the salt sticking to our windows.

To get the windows really clean we use nylon net to scrub them. It takes a lot less effort and they get sparkly clean.

Dear Heloise:

I wear a lot of ribbons in my hair and I have found a way to keep them straight.

I took a magazine about 12 inches long and rolled it into a round tube, anchoring the ends with rubber bands. (If you want to, put tissue paper around it to make it look pretty.)

Then I wound my ribbons around the roll and fastened them with paper clips.

Dear Heloise:

I made Slppppy Joes for dinner one evening. My two-year-old won't eat them, but she does love spaghetti.

So I made my spaghetti with tomato paste and 1¼ cups of water and poured the Sloppy Joe preparation over it. Then mixed it all up and my daughter ate all that was on her plate.

Now whenever I make it, it's known as "Mommy's Sloppy Spaghetti!"

Letters of Thought

Dear Heloise:

There's so much bad
in the best of us,
And so much good
in the worst of us,
It hardly behooves
any of us,
To talk about
the rest of us.

Woodstock Playhouse Offers 'Joe Egg'

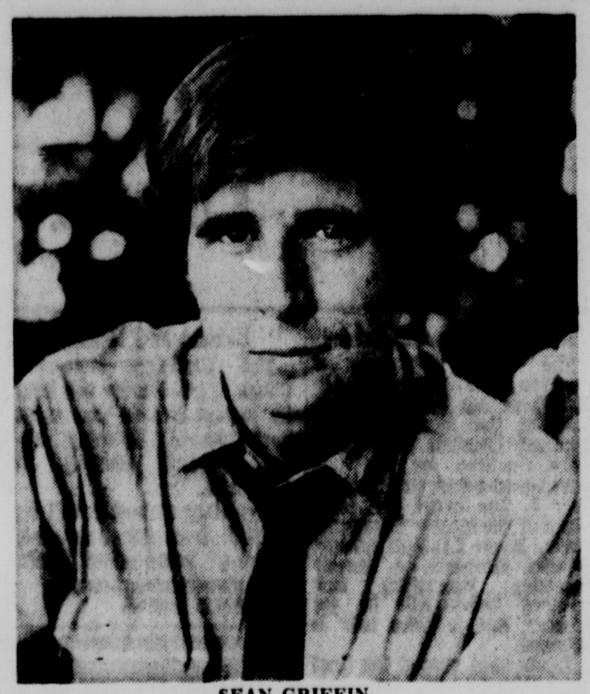

By DOROTHY A. NAREL

The Peter Nichols play JOE EGG, dubbed Best Play in a poll of the London Drama Critics, is on stage at the Woodstock Playhouse. It opened last night with Sean Griffin, Carol Emshoff, Debbi Curl, Diane Wiest, Tom Crawley and Virginia Downing in the cast. Successfully staged by Woodstock Playhouse, it is a thought provoking production.

In his desire to express the anglish and problems confronting parents with a defective child, Nichols offers a play which exposes a spectrum of emotions, both sad and at times comical. He writes from personal experience for Nichols has a multiplegic epileptic spastic daughter with brain damage in a state hospital near Bristol, England. Nichols asserts, however, the play is NOT autobiographical.

In JOE EGG, the character of the father is that of a mocking jester covering his own anguish with a veneer of jokes and theatrics. The wife, Shelia, is projected as a person who can "come up smiling" after each disaster. There is the humanitarian friend and neighbor Freddie, his self-centered wife Pam, and a fluttering mother, Grace.

JOE EGG runs the gamut of topics from husband-wife relationship to euthanasia; from suspicion of adultry to religion; from doctors and medicine to multi-guilt complexes.

SEAN GRIFFIN

Anyone who has lived with illness in the home or who is faced with oppressive problems soon learns to laugh in the face of tragedy and this is the mood created in JOE EGG. Its mirth, however, has a bitted edge, a sad undertone.

Sean Griffin, who portrays the father, is a commendable performer. He recently completed a season with the Federally funded Huntington Resident Actor Company where he was seen in INHERIT THE WIND, ERNESTIN LOVE and SPOON RIVER ANTHOLOGY. He is a member of the University of Kansas Professional Company and has done many television commercials and appeared in numerous stock productions.

Carol Emshoff, the wife in the play, interprets her role with feeling and compassion. Miss Emshoff, a product of off-Broadway, has also performed at the Tyrone Guthrie Theatre, McCarter Theatre, Cleveland Playhouse and has toured with the National Theatre Company.

Debbi Curl takes the role of the brain damaged child. For her first "on stage" role, she has little more to do than act out the part of a "vegetable," unmoving, unspeaking, immobile. She is a resident of Saugerties and, serious about acting, she is studying with Woodstock Playhouse director Harold Baldridge. Miss Curl is off to a good start.

Tom Crawley gives a smooth performance as the well meaning friend. Crawley's most recent appearance was as Persian Elder in THE PERSIANS at the Phoenix Theatre. He has appeared also in the New York Shakespeare Festival, at Lincoln Center and with the Sterling Forest Repertory Company.

Dianne Wiest, the smug wife, has appeared with the Yale Drama Festival, American School of Ballet and in the RCA Institute TV Studio productions. Virginia Downing, who appears as the mother-in-law, handles her role with ease. Miss Downing returns to the Woodstock Playhouse from the successful run of Anne Sexton's play MERCY STREET at the American Place Theatre.

Harold G. Baldridge directed JOE EGG. Resident designer David Taylor is in charge of the production and lighting is by Ronald Wallace.

JOE EGG remains at Woodstock Playhouse through June 28. AMERICA HURRAH will open on June 30 and Jeff Bleckner will take the director's chair for his production.

Curtain is at 1:40 p.m.

Ideas For a Patio Party

"Patio Party" is really a misleading title because it isn't necessary to have a patio for outdoor entertaining. A grassy backyard serves just as well; so does a driveway, if it is bordered by lawn or shrubs. And if you are worried about the weather, have you considered moving the party into the garage? It must be cleaned up, of course, but gay paper tablecloths and a few flower arrangements can dress it up beautifully. And with the doors left open and your grills set up just inside, it's almost like being outdoors — without getting wet.

The following quiz, I hope, will give you some ideas for this type of entertaining.

1. Q. My husband doesn't like to cook; is it necessary for the man to barbecue the meat? Yes...No....

A. No, but it is desirable because it leaves the hostess free to prepare and bring out the accompanying dishes. Many men pride themselves on their meat-grilling skills, and the wife who takes it on will find herself surrounded by male guests anxious to help with suggestions and the carving.

2. Q. My good china is really to delicate for outdoor entertaining. If I don't have pottery plates, are paper acceptable? Yes . . . No . . .

A. Yes, paper plates (good quality, firm ones) are appropriate for a barbecue. If you entertain frequently in this manner, however, I would try to build up a set of plastic or stoneware plates, as they are more satisfying for cutting steak, chicken, etc.

3. Q. My husband always wants to serve steak when we give a barbecue. Is that the only acceptable meat? Yes...No....

A. No. Your friends will look forward to your parties much more if you offer some variety. Swordfish, chicken, kabobs, lamb steaks, and spare ribs are all delicious.

4. Q. Are barbecues always served as a buffet? Yes...No....

A. Yes, but there should be a seat for every guest to go to after he has served himself at the buffet. If you have the facilities, small tables with hurricane lamps for lighting add to everyone's comfort.

5. Q. I've noticed that beer is always served the barbecues I go to. Is beer considered the only correct beverage? Yes...No....

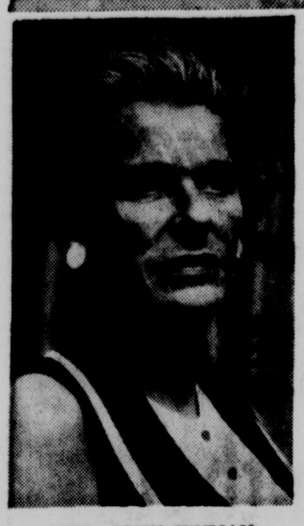

A. No. There is no limit. You may serve cocktails before eating. Although beer goes well with hearty meats, so do soft drinks, coffee, iced tea or a good red wine.

6. Q. Can you burn up the paper plates and napkins in the remains of the cooking fire? Yes...No....

A. No. They make greasy smoke, and often leave an unburned residue in your grill. You should provide a large garbage can in a convenient place for the guest to dispose of their paperware, and a container for the silverware.

Road, Car and a Barge

Tale of Irate Grader

POINT ROBERTS, Wash. (AP) — An irate grader operator from Burnaby, B.C., plowed up a road Monday, bashed in the side of a police car, then barged across the U.S.-Canadian border in a fusillade of police bullets, authorities reported.

Police on both sides of the border later pieced together the details of the incident and gave this account:

The grader operator, Ernest R. Astells, 40, crossed the border into Point Roberts to collect $680 from contractor Philip Sopow for work done on 1,000 feet of blacktop road.

"I told him his work had been unsatisfactory and I had to bring in another contractor from Vancouver to do the work over again," said Sopow. The grader operator told Sopow he had a grader parked outside and would tear up the road if he wasn't paid.

Sopow later told authorities he thought it was a bluff, but telephoned Deputy Sheriff Chad Caswell, who arrived just as the grader started gouging holes in the road.

Caswell parked his car in front of the grader which plowed ahead, taking a chunk out of the car. More police arrived.

The grader then headed for Canada, pursued by police firing shots at the machine's big tires in a futile effort to halt it.

The grader lumbered past Canadian customs officers and into Tsawassen, B.C.

Contacted by a newsman, Astells verified the account given by authorities but declined to discuss the incident.

No charges were filed, since the offense is nonextradictable, authorities said. They estimated damage to the police cruiser at $600.

Graduation

Children of the Kingston Nursery School participated in an original graduation program of song, dance, poetry and fun. Taking part in the graduation program were (L) Risa Dean, Kenny London, Jackie Olsson, Stacy Lowe and Sherry Jones. Interested parents who have not yet enrolled their children in nursery school for the September 1970 term, may do so at the Jewish Community Center, 96 Maiden Lane. There is still a limited number of enrollments in both the morning and afternoon sessions.

Innocent Of My Lai Charges

DA NANG, Vietnam (UPI)— A one-man military court tonight found a young Indiana Marine innocent of all charges in connection with the alleged massacre of 16 Vietnamese women and children by a Leatherneck patrol four months ago.

"Thank God!" cried the defendant, Pfc. Thomas R. Boyd, 20, of Evansville, when the verdict was announced by military Judge Lt. Col. Paul St. Amour of Bedford, Mass.

The Marine, weeping, embraced his civilian attorney, Howard P. Trockman, 36, also of Evansville.

Boyd had faced a possible life sentence on the charges of unpremeditated murder.

Earlier today he tearfully denied that he killed anyone and cried, "I was taught 'Thou shalt not kill.' It is never right to shoot at anybody."

The Marine, in tears and sobbing throughout much of his testimony, said that when he went on a "killer team" night patrol last Feb. 19, in the Que Son Valley he intended only to get some rest because the five-man unit was going to take its reports.

Military authorities charged that the Leathernecks instead killed five women and 11 children in a four-hut hamlet in Son Thang village, 27 miles south of Da Nang and 350 miles northeast of Saigon.

Trockman had built an emotional defense of the defendant, depicting him as a very religious person and the product of a broken home whose mother lives in poverty.

Bolivia's Junta Suffering From a Credibility Gap

(By UPI Foreign News)

Bolivia's "nationalist revolutionary" government which seized power nine months ago is suffering from a credibility gap.

The country's 30,000 tin miners are not sure the government of Gen. Alfredo Ovando Candia is as revolutionary as it says it is.

Businessmen are not sure how to balance Ovando's promise of "full guarantees" to the private sector against an implied government intention to eliminate totally all private property.

The peasants who gave strong support to the late President Gen. Rene Barrientos are feeling neglected and students, generally anti-United States, are impatient with what they regard as the slow pace of promised government reforms.

Signs of discontent even are showing up in the army.

Accompanying all this is a rising tide of violence.

A bomb explosion during a weekend student outbreak at Santa Cruz, 500 miles from the capital, La Paz, took the lives of two policemen and brought to four the number of persons slain in two days.

In February, former Interior Minister Jaime Otero Calderon was found strangled. He was publisher of a weekly newspaper and had served in the government of former President Victor Paz Estenssoro, overthrown in 1964 in a military coup led by Ovando.

On March 14 newspaper publisher Alfredo Alexander Jordan and his wife were killed by a bomb delivered as a gift package. Alexander had been critical of the military government.

The government won considerable popularity when, less than a month after seizing power, it nationalized the $150 million Gulf Oil Company.

Since then, despite reported Brazilian, Spanish and even Soviet offers, Bolivian crude oil remains unsold and negotiations to compensate Gulf drag on with both sides reported still far apart.

Negotiations with Argentina for the financing of a natural gas pipeline also appear stalled.

Trouble is predicted for the tin mines which account for 70 per cent of the country's total foreign exchange earnings of about $100 million a year. Juan Lechin, a former Bolivian vice president and labor leader, has regained leadership of the tin miners and a strike by the miners is freely predicted for this year.

Relations with the United States, which hit a low with nationalization of Gulf, have improved slightly.

But the popular support which the regime needs is lacking and a long time will be needed to rebuild business confidence.

Jury-Tampering Charged to Buffalo Man

BUFFALO (AP) — A reputed Cosa Nostra figure was in jail today, accused of jury-tampering at his trial on charges of conspiring to ship $300,000 worth of stolen gems across state lines.

Judge John O. Henderson of U.S. District Court ordered Salvatore Pieri ,59, of Buffalo jailed in lieu of $100,000 bond Tuesday and declared a mistrial.

Pieri had been on trial along with Ralph W. Jacobs, 49, of Ormond Beach, Fla.; and Anthony Romano, 43, of New York City, on the conspiracy charges.

Henderson said a grand jury indicted Pieri for obstructing justice Monday after he allegedly offered a "substantial amount of money" and bribed" her by giving her $100 cash.

The jurist had dismissed three jurors from the panel last week without explanation and let a fourth juror go Tuesday.

After declaring the mistrial and jailing Pieri, the judge said, "I have never seen such brazenness and boldness as demonstrated by the defendant."

Dubcek Loses Another Round

VIENNA (UPI) — Alexander Dubcek, who directed a liberal movement in the Czechoslovak government before the Soviet-led invasion in 1968 crushed it, lost his position as ambassador to Turkey today.

The Czechoslovak news agency CTK reported Dubcek's ouster from his last remaining public position in a three line dispatch. "President Ludvic Svoboda today recalled Alexander Dubcek from his post as ambassador to Turkey, in connection with his assignment to other duties," it said.

Diplomatic sources said Dubcek will probably be expelled from the Communist party at a meeting of the party's Central Committee. Czechoslovakia's ruling body, later this week, completing his formal downfall.

Dubcek, who was party first secretary in 1968 when the Warsaw Pact troops took over, returned home from Turkey late last month following almost daily vilification by the news media.

"Judy O'Grady and Duke's Lady" are indeed sisters under the skin in more ways than one. But they essentially share one thing in common with each other and with all mankind. And that is their hearts. The heart functions identically in everyone.

However, there are certain occupations which place greater strains on the heart than others. For example, farming is an occupation that requires larger reserves of energy than a desk job.

Work and moderate exercise are good for almost everyone including people with heart disease. But it is important not to overload the equipment. This applies to the farmer as well as to the farm machinery.

If you are a farmer and you have heart disease, you will be interested in the free booklet "A Safe Load." Write or phone the Mid-Hudson Heart Association, 72 Main Street, Kingston.

AGILE AGEE! Mets' Tommie Agee makes it back safely to first base after taking a wide turn on single to center field in the 3rd inning. Cubs' first baseman Ernie Banks (L) puts late tag on Agee. The Mets won in 10 innings, 12-10. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Singer Stars; Mets Win

(By The Associated Press)

The Los Angeles Dodgers can now only wonder what Bill Singer is going to do when he gets his strength back.

The 26-year-old Los Angeles Dodger righthander, who is recovering from an attack of hepatitis, made his third start Tuesday night since coming back from the illness.

Singer, who pitched only two and five innings in his first two starts since returning from a 52-day layoff, was supposed to pitch only "six or seven innings" against the Atlanta Braves.

But at the end of seven innings, Singer hadn't given up a hit and had allowed only one baserunner on a walk.

"Go, ahead, if they get a hit I'll take you out," manager Walt Alston said as he sent Singer out for the eighth. Singer didn't make it through the inning since Clete Boyer singled with two out but both he and Alston were surprised that he was so effective. And he wound up getting credit for the Dodgers' 7-0 victory with relief help from Pete Mikkelsen, who pitched the final 1 1-3 inning and allowed one hit to make it a two-hitter.

It's been a tedious road back for Singer, who wasn't even allowed to throw in a playground near his home until May 26th. The only unfortunate thing for the Dodgers is that they may be too far behind the Reds (nine games) for Singer's presence to make a difference in the second half of the season. The Reds maintained their margin by downing San Francisco 5-3.

In other games, the New York Mets edged Chicago 12-10 in 10 innings. Montreal nipped Philadelphia 2-1. Pittsburgh beat St. Louis 7-2 and Houston nipped San Diego 2-1.

In the American League, Kansas City topped Oakland 7-5, Milwaukee beat Minnesota 4-3, Washington edged Detroit 6-2, Boston beat Baltimore 5-1 and Chicago topped California 7-3. New York and Cleveland were idle.

The Mets seem to be doing the same thing to the Cubs that they did last year. The Mets won their second straight from Chicago to move within 1 1-2 games of the Cubs in the Eastern Division and the teams play a double-header today. But the most frustrating thing for the Cubs was the way the Mets won it.

The Cubs held a 10-8 lead with two out in the ninth when Ken Boswell singled in two runs to tie the game and send it into extra innings. In the 10th, Duffy Dyer failed twice to advance Ron Swoboda with a bunt and then swung away on a 3-2 pitch and hit his first homer of the season to win the game.

After the game, the Mets severed another link with their past when they sent Ed Kranepool to the minors and brought up Ken Singleton, who was hitting .388 at Tidewater of the International League.

Tony Perez, Ha' McRaw and Lee May hit homers to power the Reds past the Giants. Perez leads the majors with 26. Gary Nolan went 6 2-3 innings to gain the win.

Bob Robertson's two-run triple highlighted a five-run first inning that carried Pittsburgh past St. Louis. Bob Moose pitched a nine-hitter to gain the victory.

Kranepool Optioned To Tidewater Squad

CHICAGO (UPI)—Ed Kranepool, who broke in with the New York Mets during their first season in 1962, Wednesday was optioned to the Mets' minor league affiliate at Tidewater and replaced on the roster by Ken Singleton, the International League's leading hitter.

Kranepool, who signed with the Mets out of James Monroe High School for $72,000, was batting only .118 this season and had been used by manager Gill Hodges almost exclusively as a pinch-hitter. However, the 25-year-old first baseman had failed to get a hit in 18 pinch-hitting appearnaces.

Kranepool played in the Mets' 12-10 etxra inning victory over the Chicago Cubs Wednesday, and it marked his first appearance as a player on the field since May 28.

Kranepool said he would report to Tidewate, but would return to his home in Farmingdale, N. Y., to talk to his wife before reporting. He and teammate Ron Swoboda had opened a restaurant in Amityville Tuesday.

Kranepool also served as the Met player representative and that job will probably now be taken over by Tom Seaver, who was the alternate.

Singleton, a 23-year-old outfielder, was hitting .388 at Tidewater and was leading the league in homers with 15. Singleton will report to the Mets in time for Thursday's doubleheader with the Cubs.

Savago's Team Regains First

NEW PALTZ

Savago's Insurance moved back into first place in the Eastern Division and Pat and George's continued to dominate Western play as the Mohonk Twi-Light Golf League completed its sixth week of action.

Savago's is still being pushed by the Elting Agency, however, Van Vliet Pontiac dropped further off the pace in third and Benson's Clothiers brings up the rear.

Ed Taxter continued to lead the P and G's team with Tantillo's Garage and New Paltz Lumber tied at a distant second. VFW is in last place.

NCAA Field May Expand

HOUSTON (UPI)—The chairman of next year's NCAA basketball tournament said Tuesday he will ask the field of teams in the tournament be increased from 25 to 32.

"A lot of times you have the No. 1 and 2 teams in the nation both in the same conference," Tom Scott said. "Under our present system, only one would be invited. I think we should invite both teams."

Scott, the athletic director of Davidson University, said he would formally request the NCAA tournament committee to increase the number of teams in the tournament.

"I'm certain we could find 32 good teams in this nation," Scott said. "If we can't we are in trouble."

He said his request was not designed to hurt the N. I. T. basketball tournament held every year in Madison Square Garden in New York. The N. I. T., which runs almost concurrently with the NCAA, usually draws conference runners-up and highly rated independents into its tournament.

Next year's NCAA tourney will be played in Houston's Astrodome.

"I'm sure it will be a great tournament," Scott said. "Of course, all this talk about attendance records will depend on what teams are competing and the interest created by the competition. But it should be one of the most exciting tournaments ever."

Sawyer Boosters Needed

An attempt to form a Saugerties High School Athletic Boosters Club, will be made at a 7:30 p.m. meeting tonight at the High School Auditorium. All parents and anyone wishing to help organize this club are asked to attend. Similar clubs have already been formed by Kingston and Onteora High Schools.

Setter Acclaimed Best Dog in Show

RHINEBECK There were 1,265 dogs entered in the Mid-Hudson Kennel Club's 28th annual show here Saturday and a Gordon setter by the name of Champion Legend of Gail, C.D. was judged the best of the lot.

The setter is owned by Mrs. Cheevers Porter of New York and is considered a sporting dog.

First prize for non-sporting dog was won by a Lhasa Apso, a recently popular dog in this country which stands about a foot high with long hair that hangs to the ground. Owner was Pat Chenoweth of Saratoga, Calif.

Groups judged besides breeds were terrier, working, hound, sporting, toy and non-sporting. A Junior Showmanship Competition was held.

Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. presented the silver loving cup to the Best in Show winner.

Checks were presented to the Ulster and Dutchess County SPCAs and the Ulster County Association for Retarded Children, in the amount of $100 each for the former and $400 to the latter.

Crowds of several thousand persons engaged in and viewed the proceedings, which included such little known breeds as Affenpinchers, Basenjis, Briards, Dandie Dinmont Terriers, Keeshonden, Papillons, Pulik, Rottweilers, Salukis, Schipperkes, Ski Tzu and Welsh Corgies.

The show entry exceeded last year's total of 1,168 dogs representing 99 breeds. In 1968, 100 breeds were in attendance.

The Mid-Hudson is an All-Breed show sanctioned by the American Kennel Club and is regarded as one of the most prestigious events on the annual show dog calendar. There are 117 breed or breed varieties recognized by the American Kennel Club.

Legion, Rock and Elks Winners in Babe Ruth

John Guess of the American Legion fired a no-hitter and struck out 12, as the Legion thrashed Kingston Patolmen's Association, 11-1, in the Babe Ruth League.

In other games, Elks tripped the Knights of Columbus, 12-7, despite 4 hits on each side and Pete Boyd of Rock Construction limited Kiwanis to three hits and fanned 11 in a 4-2 victory in 8 innings.

The lone dun off Geuss was the result of a walk to Don Timbrouck and two errors. The Legion had eight hits off Chuck Bouton, who whiffed 11.

Duane Carey led the Legion with three singles and John Carter added a single and double.

Elks scored seven runs in the sixth inning on only two hits, after Mike Palladino doubled with the bases loaded for the Knights in the fifth.

Jim Milano fanned 11 to get the win with help from John Stote. Trom Triscari (11) and Palladino (5) combined for 16 Knights strikeouts. Jeff Sheldon and Milano had two hits each for the Elks. Triscari doubled for the losers.

Pete Boyd's leadoff double triggered Rock's winning rally in the eighth inning against Kiwanis. Two errors and a fielder's choice accounted for the two runs.

Million Brazilians Greet Their World Soccer Kings

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Brazil's celebration over its World Cup soccer victory reached its peak Tuesday night when millions turned out in this city to welcome the returning heroes.

Only the presence of hundreds of police kept the parade taking the players from the airport to a hotel in the downtown section of the city from getting out of control as adoring fans tried to reach the players, to touch them or tear their clothes.

Police reported two persons died of heart attacks, and many others were treated at hospitals for burns from fireworks and injuries from traffic accidents.

A light rain couldn't dampen the enthusiasmm

Millions also watched on television as the crowd along the parade route shouting "Brazil, Brazil," and soccer songs echoed over and over again through the streets.

Leon's Magic Wand

CHARLES J. TIANO

Nobody disputes the golf truism that putting is half the game. In the locker room, the most hard bitten tour pros will tell you it's 90 per cent of the game.

Take Leon Randall, for example. There are golfers in Ulster County who can outdrive him and match him in iron play. But once the Wiltwyck veteran gets that magic wand in his hands, he becomes a man apart.

Eight Herdegen Memorial titles, four 2nds, a first place tie and one third in 16 tries is testimony enough of his complete domination of Ulster County Amateur golf since the Herdegen was instituted in 1951.

RANDALL'S OVERALL game in the last 36 holes, which he toured in 6-under-par at Twaalfskill-Wiltwyck, was not as sharp as we've seen during some of his peak performances. Come again?

Even he admitted that he wasn't hitting the ball as well as he could. But he knocked down those clutch putts and recovered magnificently from bad positions several times during the two days.

Randall's remarkable putting skill and all-round game has long obscured one phase of his game that his contemporaries have never overlooked—his ability to bail himself out of trouble and salvage his par with a one-putt green.

It would be unfair to call him a scrambler because his game is too solidly harnessed, too finely honed to get into that category. But when the occasion call for it, he can overcome adversity like no other golfer around.

RANDALL'S MASTERY of the Twaalfskill Club layout with its lush greens is not hard to fathom. He just loves to putt there and the length of the course means that he is always shooting for birdies and eagles.

Three times he has attained the magic mark of 65. On three other occasions he has broken 70. And in 15 tournaments including one round of 76, he has been just 10 strokes over par for the distance. Imagine what he could do if he played there regularly!

ONE NEW NAME with long range potential emerged from this year's 20th anniversary tournament—lanky John Buoymaster, the shy shotmaker who was No. 1 player with Onteora Central High's UCAL golf champions and plays out of Woodstock Country Club.

Buoymaster and Joe Bostic are rated the No. 1 scholastic players in Ulster County, depending on whether the conversation is taking place in Woodstock or Kingston.

For this tournament, at least, John was the kingpin. He survived the 54-hole cut with a 232 score. Bostic, who confided to us before the finals that he was unsure of his game, missed the cutoff figure of 235 by two strokes.

The Sunday round at Wiltwyck may have the catalytic agent that convinced John Buoymaster that he can go on to become a great golfer. Five over par after Wiltwyck's relatively easy first two holes, he could have folded right then and there. But he didn't. He maintained his cool, proceeded to birdie the tough No. 3 and 9th holes, then toured the back nine in 35 for a fine 77. In other words, he played the last 16 holes in even par 58.

A TOURNAMENT RECAP: The second cutoff reducing the field to the 12 lowest shooters wasn't popular with either the rank and file players or the spectators. It was an experiment that like the Noble Experiment of American history will not be repeated, if there is a Herdegen Memorial in 1971.

It is painfully evident that the so-called quota system simply doesn't work and is discriminatory in some aspects. If the golf courses are available the Herdegen of 1971 will revert to its original format of open qualifying for 36 holes and a stipulated number of players eligible for the last 36 holes.

FIGGER FILBERT: The new Sawyerkill Country Club layout predictably played tougher than the other three courses—Woodstock, Twaalfskill and Wiltwyck. The 12 finalists averaged 79.75 shots a round at Sawyerkill, 74.25 at Woodstock, 73.90 at Twaalfskill and 76.42 at Wiltwyck.

The overall average round for the 12 players at the four courses was 76 plus 3 extra strokes. This is excellent scoring for amateurs in medal competition.

The Herdegen Memorial has used the medal format since its inception, pre-dating the changeover from match play to medal in both the National PGA and more recently, the United States Amateur and New York State Amateur.

The weather and playing conditions were absolutely superb for the 20th annual renewal of this golf classic. Spectator interest doubled over that of recent years and the field was unquestionably the finest ever. Our thanks to Mike Perry, Joe Shuler for their assistence in promoting the event.

A victory in the Herdegen is a prestigious accomplishment. Eight victories have not satiated Leon Randall's desire to win it. "Winning the Herdegen always gives me a great deal of satisfaction," he says.

THE HERDEGEN COMMITTEE welcomed Sawyerkill Country Club of Saugerties into the fold this year and the Sawyers responded elegantly. Men like club president, Morris Rosenblum. Stew Smith, the pro; Hugo Knauert, George Barber and David Halpert, worked extremely hard to make the Sawyerkill layout as attractive as possible for the Herdegen.

The Sawyerkill has tremendous potential and will some day soon be a challenging nine-hole course.

If the Herdegen continues, it will expand its horizons to include clubs like the Granit at Accord, the new Rondout Valley layout, Locust Tree Golf and Country Club at New Paltz, Stone Dock and others.

A meeting will be held in the next couple weeks to determine the future of this noble golf classic, the U.S. Open of Ulster County.

In other City Slow pitch action, Boulevard Gulf topped Corner Rest 10-5 and Rite Cleaners edged Federal Venetian 9-8.

Horace Walker and Rod Wilson aided Armstrong in the Eden attack with one home run each. Bob Mastens had a home run, double and single to lead the Strangeglove victory.

Kollns Lead Net With 138

SCHENECTADY — Mrs. Werner Kolln and her daughter, Nancy Kolln, of Wiltwyck Country Club, carded a 67 Tuesday to win the net division of the Gail Sykes Best-Ball Tournament with a 36-hole score of 138. They had 71 in Monday's opening round.

The Kollns finished three strokes ahead of the Mohawk tandem of Mrs. J. Dutcher and Mrs. George Woods, first round leaders with a 68 who slipped to 73 but finished second at 141, one shot ahead of another Mohawk team—Mrs. Thomas Getty and Mrs. P. Potts.

The Stuhler sisters of Amsterdam, Lorri and Sara Jane, edged Mrs. Allen Sheals of Mohawk and Mrs. Jay Banker of Schuyler Meadows for their second consecutive title on the first extra hole.

Lorri Stuhler sank a 10-foot par putt on that first extra hole at the Edison Club to achieve the victory in the open division.

The two teams had tied in the regulation tournament with 36-hole totals of 157. The Stuhlers, who won this Northeastern Women's Golf Association event with a 151 total at Shaker Ridge in 1969, posted 78 Monday and 79 Tuesday. The duo of Mrs. Sheals and Mrs. Banker had 80 Monday, but made up the deficit by fashioning a round of 39-38-77.

The sudden death playoff started on the 10th hole where the teams began the day's round. All four players failed to hit par-four 355-yard hole in regulation and were on in three. After Mrs. Sheal and Mrs. Banker missed their bids for four, Lorie Stuhler rolled in her 10-footer to clinch the victory.

Raceway Feature To Devil's Pardner

MONTICELLO — The Devil's Pardner seems to have come into his own at the ripe age of 10. The late-blooming darn flashy trotter scored his third victory in a row (four, including a qualifier) Tuesday night at Monticello Raceway, and in so doing, earned a new lifetime record of 2:07.4. Gary Myer was not to be denied as he guided his aged steed to a wire-to-wire triumph, paying $14.40 to win and combining for a $132.00 perfecta return.

The Devil's Pardner left the gate on top and led at every station. The brief challenge offered by the chancy three-year-old New York bred, Great Tag, fell short by two lengths for driver George Gilmour. Heavily favored Bryce (Ken McNutt) finished third but was placed fourth for running in the stretch, being replaced by newcomer Easter Scamp (Lew Gregory).

The co-featured C-Q pace resulted in a second straight win for Missie Marvel (Mickey Martyniak) and a reduced record of 2:06.2. Sitting comfortably throughout, Martyniak made his move in the stretch to win going away from Senator Greene (George Gilmour) and Little Sport (Tony Del Priore), returning $7.60 on the win end.

Due to an Army Reserve commitment by Pistol Pete Maravich, this weekend, his highly - anticipated basketball exhibition will be presented on Friday evening at 8 p.m. instead of Saturday afternoon as originally scheduled. Not wanting to disappoint the public, the place-kicking contest between Pete Gogolak and Jan Stenerud will be moved back a day to the Saturday afternoon spot reserved for Maravich. All in all, the added attractions will certainly provide the finishing touches to a sports-packed weekend, highlighted by the Saturday afternoon-evening double-header program.

Another longshot daily double was effected at Monticello Raceway, due to large part to breakers and unintentional interference which helped to eliminate some of the logical contenders. In the end, it was the 5-2 combination which rewarded $145.60 to its successful backers.

Goldleaf's Track Luck Is All Bad

MOSPORT, Canada — Ron Goldleaf, Kingston's only professional race car driver, is entered in the Can-Am series race at St. Jovite, Canada this Sunday. Goldleaf will be driving the Vic Franzese-owned McLaren M6B and crew chief Chauncey "Jocko" Maagiacomo is making every effort to prepare the car for the qualifying rounds.

Goldleaf competed in last week's running of the series at Mosport and had a run of hard luck as various incidents kept the Kingston lad from a possible sixth-place finish. He crossed the line in 17th position.

Ron had little chance to drive in practice as late shipment of the engine and suspension problems kept the car tied up in the pits. He qualified, however, in 10 laps.

Once the race started, Goldleaf's troubles continued as his car hit a patch of loose gravel, ran off the road and stalled as he was about to pass another car. The battery wouldn't turn over and Ron had to run more than a mile back to the pits for a battery and back to the car.

Continuing on, he had to stop for a spark plug change, making all repairs on the course himself. Ron did manage to finish the race, doing better than half the cars that had started the gruelling event.

Five teams are currently shooting against each other for seven trophies that will be awarded. One trophy will go to each man on the high over all team, one to the individual with the highest average not on the winning team, and one to the man with the most high-scores-per-evening.

Team One: Jack Robinson, captain, Wappingers Falls, Pete Barone, Ed Hazen, Lou Jordan, Steve Juracek:

SAUGERTIES — Michael's Barber Shop clubbed McConekey's Funeral Home, 16-7, to move into second place in the White Division of the Saugerties Softball League, a half game behind league-leading A. J. Scarselli's (4-1).

In other action, Glasco A. C. hung a 4½-inning stopper under the 10-run rule (10-1) on Ferroxcube to even its record at 3 and 3. South Side and Men's Club are tied with 4-1 records. Rotron Corp. and Helsmoortel Insurance share a first place tie with 3-2 records in the Blue Division.

Bob Campbell spaced nine hits for Michael's, who were paced by Dean Stewart and Art Cribbins, both two doubles and three runs batted in. Bert Quick collected two hirts for McConekey's.

Joe Ferraro, making his 1970 debut, tossed a five-inning 2-hitter, as Ferroxcube suffered its fifth stopper loss in six defeats. Mike Zavednak knocked in three runs with a single double and Steve DePoala had two RBIs on two singles.

Mews to Defend Title

KINGSTON — Heinz Mews, the long hitting bomber from Dogwood Knolls Country Club in Dutchess County, has notified Wiltwyck Invitation officials that he will defend his title in the 1970 event scheduled July 17-18-19.

Mews captured his first title in 1967 and won again in 1969. He is rated one of the finest amateurs in the Hudson Valley and threat to win anytime he keeps his booming drives under control.

Leon Randall, the Invitational chairman, has announced a couple of changes in the 1970 tourney. The field will be reduced from the traditional 128 players to 120.

A new format will be tried in the 16 player Championship Flight. After the qualifying round and first round of play, the top flight will be divided in two, with the low eight scorers contnuing in medal play and the lower half in match play as in the past.

Mews heads a powerful Dutchess County contingent that also includes the 1964 champion Bob Botsford; George Pacecho, current Dutchess Golf and Country Club champion; Chauncy Maggiacomo; John Pretak, 1969 finalist at Dutchess; Frank Abbott, former IBM champion and Rick Tavares.

Dick Rathbun of Dinsmore has also filed an entry.

William (Bill) Odeneal of New Paltz, who tied for second in last week's Herdegen Memorial, will be in the field, along with Andy Jasienowski, Sawyerkill Country Club champion and Preston Irwin of Stamford Country Club.

Three members of the Smith family, Joseph, Joseph Jr. and Michael Smith—will represent the Powelton Club of Newburgh. Sonny and Sal Gagliardi head the usual large delegation from Yonkers.

Harvey Bostic of the host club has captured four Invitational titles since the tournament started in 1958. He won the inaugural and again in 1960, 1966-67. Randall led three times—1959, 1961, 1968. ¼

Ladies Day at Wimbledon

Mrs. Carole Kalogeropoulos of Greece—the former Carole Prosen of Orlando, Fla.—modeled the dress at a garden party last weekend. She and her husband, Nicky, are entered in the mixed doubles at Wimbledon on Thursday.

"It hasn't finally been decided whether she will wear the dress on court or not. I haven't any idea what the All-England Club will think of it. But I know what they have said about some of my creations in the past," said Tinley, who was 60 Tuesday.

The see-through dress has everybody talking. But his major, more conventional, contribution to this year's Wimbledon fashions is an "oranges and lemons" outfit.

The girls have a colorful orange embroidered on one side of their skirts and a lemon on the other. Some, like Virginia Wade of Britain, have their initials worked into the fruity pattern.

On the court two seeds were upset — Tom Okker of the Netherlands by South Africa's Bob Hewitt, and Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia by Russia's Alexander Metreveli.

Metreveli beat the 13th-seeded Kodes 6-2, 7-5, 3-6, 2-6, 7-5 in their first round match, and Hewitt ousted No. 11, Okker, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3.

Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., the No. 3 U.S. player although unseeded here, also was beaten, losing to No. 8 Ilie Nastase, the Romanian Davis Cup star, 7-5, 7-6, 6-4, 6-3.

But the 1-2-3 seeds, Rod Laver and John Newcombe of Australia and Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., all moved into the third round.

Laver routed countryman John Alexander 6-1, 6-3, 6-3, and Newcombe eliminated Nicky Kalogeropoulos of Greece 6-1, 6-2, 6-1.

Ashe figured in one of the best contests of the day, a two-hour 9-7, 11-13, 6-4, 6-4 victory over Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia.

Other Americans who reached the third round were Stan Smith of Los Angeles, No. 7; Clark Graebner of New York No. 9; Dennis Ralton of Bakersfield, Calif., No. 15, and Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill.

Firm Bid Readied For SALT Parley

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid optimism over the SALT talks, President Nixon today called in his chief disarmament negotiator to hammer out a specific U.S. bid for an arms accord with the Soviet Union.

Both defensive antiballistic missiles ane long-range offensive missiles seem likely to be included in the proposal which U.S. disarmament chief Gerald C. Smith will put forth on his return to the SALT—Strategic Arms Limitation Talks—at

Some predict a limited agreement in principle may be reached by the two superpowers before the summer recess. It would take months, however, before any agreement could be formulated into a treaty.

Smith and two top aides at the Vienna talks flew into Washington Monday at an important point in the negotiations that began in Helsinki last fall and resumed in the Austrian capital two months ago.

The U.S. and Soviet envoys have been secretly exchanging views and concepts on how to clamp a lid on the spiraling big power nuclear arms race. The Americans believe the two sides should now get down to more specific propositions.

The latest official optimism about the Vienna proceedings came Tuesday from Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird "The Strategic Arms Limitation Talks have, we think, moved along very well," the secretary told a London news conference.

One reason for the administrations' hopeful tone has been what U.S. diplomats consider to be the Russians' business-like attitude in the closed negotiations.

The Kremlin has kept to its bargain of secrecy. Its negotiators have displayed sophisticated knowledge about modern strategic weapons. And, with a Communist congress due in Moscow this fall, some here believe the Russians will want to show something at home for their Vienna efforts.

Both the U.S. and Soviet strategists have shown a preference for a comprehensive agreement that includes both offensive and defensive weapons. The two are linked since each side's ABMs are designed to protect against the other's long-range missiles.

Thus one option Nixon may decide to push would be to limit Russian ABMs to the Moscow area, which the Soviets already have, in return for a comparable ABM defense in the United States, say around Washington, plus a ceiling on the rival intercontinental ballistic missiles.

These items would be relatively easy to inspect by existing means such as seeing-eye satellites.

Another would be to include MIRVs—multiple independently targetable re-entry vehicles — which the United States is starting to deploy and which the Soviets are developing. But this would probably require on-the-spot inspections unacceptable to the Soviets. Still another variant would be to include long-range bombers.

$10.3 Million Suit Filed Against General Electric

TROY, N.Y. (AP) — A furniture store has filed a $10.3 million suit against the General Electric Co., claiming that "gross negligence" on GE's part linked to "inherently dangerous and unsafe" color television sets, led to 1967 fire that destroyed the firm's building and merchandise.

The suit, filed Tuesday in Rensselaer County Supreme Court by Feathers Furniture Co., involves a total of $301,000 in compensatory damages and $10 million in punitive damages.

The complaint alleged that "certain television set or sets self-ignited and-or exploded," leading to the blaze which swept through the three story store and warehouse on May 26, 1967.

According to the suit, GE was responsible for "gross negligence . . . in manufacturing, selling and placing upon the market for sale and to be used by the public an article which it well knew was inherently dangerous and unsafe . . ."

Also alleged in connection with the color TVs was that GE "knew the contents were highly combustible, inflammable, and of explosive tendencies and that no warning was given. . ."

The raging fire in downtown Troy, fanned by a high wind, also heavily damaged four other nearby buildings, and left standing only a small brick wall section of the furniture store at 101st St. and Second Ave.

First Lady Going to Peru With Quake Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) —First Lady Pat Nixon will fly to Peru Sunday to personally deliver a plane load of supplies for earthquake victims.

At the request of the President, Mrs. Nixon will deliver relief funds, clothing and equipment gathered from U.S. volunteers for Peruvians in devastated coastal areas.

It will be Mrs. Nixon's first solo trip outside the United States as First Lady.

Mrs. Nixon will fly from California to Lima on a three-day round trip that will include a helicopter inspection of the disaster area resulting from the May 31 earthquake which killed more than 50,000 persons and made homeless another 300,000 to 500,000.

Dear Abby

Seating Etiquette

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: There is one thing that has irked me for 13 years. My son's wife makes a point of seating HER father at the head of the table whenever she has a dinner party.

I have sworn to myself that the next time she does this I would get up and leave, but I never do. I am afraid one of these times I will burst.

This son of mine is no slouch. He's a big, handsome guy. Former football player, a good husband, and has a good job. He is also a gentleman. Perhaps it would be best if I just refused future invitations to dinner. Am I a fool?

IRKED NO END

DEAR IRKED: I wouldn't call you a "fool"—but I do think you are needlessly exercised over a trivial incident. Rather than indicating a lack of respect for her husband (if that's what you read into your daughter-in-law's seating arrangement) perhaps she is attempting to show "special respect" to her father. The two are not necessarily 'competing." In any case, it's her dinner table, and if her husband feels put down, let HIM speak up.

DEAR ABBY: When a woman takes a married man away from his wife and family, do you think that woman can ever be happy with that man?

SAN CARLOS

DEAR SAN: Sometimes. She's like the woman who buys a secondhand washing machine. She doesn't care where it came from—as long as it works.

DEAR ABBY: I think you are wrong! I taught my children to answer the telephone with, "WHO IS THIS?" And if the party on the other end doesn't identify himself, I tell my children to hang up.

This telephone is installed for MY convenience, and I see no reason why people should object to identifying themselves. They wouldn't think of calling a business office and asking to talk to the boss without identifying themselves first!

STATEN ISLAND

DEAR STATEN: Listen carefully, please:

I, too, believe all telephone callers should identify themselves. We disagree only on what the child is taught to say when he answers the telephone. In my opinion, "WHO IS THIS?" is rude.

A simple "HELLO" is proper, after which the caller is given a chance to identify himself, and ask, "May I speak to your mother?" If the caller does not identify himself, the child should then ask, "Who is calling, PLEASE?" This should offend no one.

But a child who answers the phone with, "WHO IS THIS?" offends many.

DEAR ABBY: I applaud your stand on "drop in" callers. Keep it up. I don't even go to my door anymore. When they phone later to say they "heard" someone inside, I say, sweetly, "O, if you had called beforehand I would have gone to my door."

I resent their taking away our option to see them or not as WE choose. But maybe that's their idea.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

NASTY: (Q.) My new girl friend invited me to a party. While we were there she drank and smoked. I don't do either. They are against my religion. I told her this and she said some really nasty things to me. I need help.—Shocked in Chicago.

(A.) The help you need is the help a girl with tastes more like yours can give you. If you have an understanding with the girl who talked nasty to you, break it, even if she talks nasty again.

After you've made the break, don't talk to other people about this girl who talks nasty. But find a new girl friend who does not smoke or drink or talk nasty.

ROAD BACK: (Q.) I started smoking grass when I was 15. LSD was next, then speed, barbiturates, and, when I was 17, heroin. I spent some time in jail. Then last October I started a methadone program. I'm off drugs now.

But I'm so lonely. I've had to give up my friends who are still on drugs, and no one else will accept me. My friends who knew me before I got hooked won't give me a chance. They won't even listen to me. What can I do?—Changed But Lonely in Baltimore.

(A.) You've defeated drugs and this is wonderful! You want to tell others about it so they won't make the same mistake. This is admirable, but not easy.

Be honest. Do not try to hide your past. But do not insist on talking about it. If someone wants to listen, tell your story. If not, talk about something else.

You'll eventually find some people big enough to be unafraid and to like you for what you are in the present. They may be able to help you help others who are really looking for help.

(Want personal answers to your questions? Write to Jean Adams, Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Only letters that include a stamped, self-addressed envelope will be answered.)

Q—How long has Vatican City been a sovereign state separate from the government of Italy?

Q — What was the weight of the largest silver nugget on record?

Q — Why does the North Star appear never to rise or set?

A — It is directly over the axis on which the earth spins, so rotation of the earth does not affect its position as it is seen from the earth.

CARROLL RIGHTER'S horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are able to combine the best from the past with some excellent new arrangements by which you can be more successful. Be sure that you are active today and tonight, analyzing where you have had success in the past and how you can use all the energy released to make new gains in the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A good day to contact experts. Arrange whatever needs financial consideration, kin included. Listen to any suggestions friends have to make. Be active and get ahead.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Look to good friends for the assistance you need to handle several problems that are annoying you. Find a better system for handling regular routines. Make your life easier and more profitable.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A private anxiety that has been bothering you for some time can be rid of now with the assistance of experts and advisors Get right to the work that has to be done. Then you make headway.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A dynamic pal who usually likes to keep you down will now give the right ideas for getting ahead, so follow advice. Be sure to stay with trusted friends if you are going out socially after sundown. Be wise.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Take care you do nothing to annoy one in high position or it could jeopardize your fine reputation so carefully built up. Be sure to keep promises you have made. Get them out of the way.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Use standard methods, long neglected, for a better understanding with an associate. Seek out that emotional pal who has fine ideas, though he or she has been somewhat boring in the past. Be kind.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be certain to handle duties in a most meticulous fashion today. Observe how one who is a specialist operates. Then follow through in a like manner. Be happy with mate in the evening. Be wise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) This can be a happy day for you if you ignore that partner who likes to criticize unnecessarily. Then out to the amusements you prefer with others. Be sure you do not get home too late at night.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be inventive. Show family that they are precious to you. Be certain to do whatever work is exclusively yours. Be happier with mate, also. Show more understanding, true love.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Ideal day to contact those individuals with whom you want to work out some important arrangements. State your ideas clearly. Get into the kind of hobbies that you prefer. Forget dull duties after dark.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Show others that you are patient and understanding. Don't encroach on the will and pleasures of others. Stop criticizing. Talk over finances with kin. They could help at such a precarious time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Do those things in which you feel you are accomplishing a great deal and getting the results you want. Out to the social at night. However, be sure you drive or walk with utmost care.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those children who, early in life, must have the right philosophy on which to build a successful life. Give as fine an education as you can that combines both the practical and the visionary, which teaches why people act as they do. Make sure that the diet is right and the sports are right, also. Help to provide travel early.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

When your side holds both the spade suit and a majority of the top cards you expect to be able to show a profit. East and West have nine spades and 23 high-card points but in the recent Amarillo regional practically every North-South pair showed a profit.

When West played in four spades, North and South invariably set the contract by scoring the ace of trumps, king of diamonds, one high heart and at least one club ruff.

At other tables South played in five hearts and usually made it.

When Steve Greenberg of Oklahoma City and Jack Blair of Tulsa sat East and West they doubled five hearts and managed to set it.

Jack started by opening the deuce of trumps. South looked the hand over and saw that he was one entry short in dummy to set up the clubs. Therefore, he needed to ruff three of his spades and diamonds in dummy to produce 11 tricks. He won the trump in his hand, led a spade to the ace and played a diamond.

At this point Steve had a good chance to go wrong. If he rose with the ace there would be no way for Jack to get in to lead the second trump, so Steve played the jack. South won with his king, entered dummy by ruffing a spade and led another diamond.

Steve had noted Jack's play of the eight on the first diamond lead. After long thought he decided that Jack had played it from 10-8. Therefore Steve ducked. Jack got in with the 10 and led a second trump to hold South to just 10 tricks.

Humanizing 'Bold Ones'

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Bold Ones," which is three series run in rotation, is ideally suited to the changes television executives make during the summer in an effort to brighten programs.

NBC has dropped one "Bold Ones" segment about a district attorney and a policeman and has ordered it replaced with programs about an idealistic senator. It was as easy as changing an auto's spark plugs.

David Hartman, the lanky young man who plays one of the doctors in the segment about contemporary medical advances, said the other day that while science will continue to dominate the segment, "we hear they're going to try to humanize the characters."

It did seem sometimes last season that the antiseptic doctors were prisoners of their careers and slaves to their shining equipment. They were marvelous—helping the blind to see in a new way, diagnosing the illnesses of astronauts in space, keeping people alive with new surgical techniques.

"I don't know what kind of cases we'll be having," said Hartman, "but I do hear that we're going to be given some sort of an existence outside the hospital—maybe even dates with girls."

David, 33, quit a career as an economist for acting. He had the usual lean period in New York, but has been increasingly successful in Hollywood.

His big break came with a role in the original cast of "Hello, Dolly!" After 80 performances in that, he was kept busy in the theatre, then signed with Universal Studios four years ago. He has been working steadily in films and television since, including one year as a regular on "The Virginian." He traded his chaps and six shooter for white coat and stethoscope to co-star with E. G. Marshall in "The Bold Ones."

Since Hartman's series consists of only eight or nine programs, it occupied only a couple of months of his time last season.

"But I knew the role I was going to play, and I spent months before that hanging around hospitals, watching doctors at work. I sat in on surgery, walked around with interns and got to know one cardiologist very well. It is important to do those things right."

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Jamestown, Va., became the first permanent English settlement in America in 1607. The World Almanac notes that St. Augustine, Fla., is the oldest white settlement in America. It was founded by Don Pedro Menendez, captain general of the Spanish fleet, in September, 1565. Britain took control of the town in 1763 and, in 1783, St. Augustine was re-ceded to Spain. It became part of the United States in 1821.

Form Pincer Drive Around Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (UPI) — Vietnamese Communists surrounded Kompong Speu early today and began firing on the vital highway center 25 miles southwest of this capital, a Cambodian military spokesman said.

The move against Kompong Speu put Communist forces in offensive positions at three towns from 15 to 25 miles from Phnom Penh, forming a type for pincer movement from the east around the northern and southern sides of the capital.

The spokesman said some Cambodian troops had been pulled back into Phnom Penh from the fighting at Prek Tameak, a town 15 miles northeast of the capital the Viet Cong attacked three days ago. And 25 miles to the east, a large force of North Vietnamese troops was reported massing for an anticipated attack on Prey Veng and a possible strike from there against Phnom Penh.

The spokesman said nine persons in Kompong Speu were wounded by Communist fire on the oown today.

In South Vietnam, American and South Vietnamese troops fought Communist units in separate battles in the northern provinces. And in Laos, Communists overran two government positions near the town of Saravane and captured a navigation beacon used by American planes bombing the Ho Chi Minh Trail, sources in Vietiane saidm

The U.S. military Command in Saigon said two paratroopers in the U.S. 101st Airborne Division were killed and five others wounded in the clash Tuesday with a Communist force 21 miles southwest of the former royal capital of Hue in South Vietnam. Communist casualties in the battle were unknown.

South Vietnamese troops killed 47 Communists and captured large stores of munitions in the other battle at a Viet Cong base camp 20 miles southwest of the northern provincial capital of Quang Tri. A government spokesman said the troops also destroyed about 100 houses in the base area. Government casualties were light with no fatalities, he said.

In Cambodia, where American troops are in the final week of their campaign, spokesmen said 1st Air Cavalry Division helicopter gunships and Air Force fighters killed 10 Communists in a strike four miles west of the border with South Vietnam. A ground unit of the division killed six other Communists in the same area, about 100 miles north of Saigon.

Spiro on Tonkin: No War Effect If Repeal Comes

DENVER (UPI)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said Tuesday the Gulf of Tonkin resolution was not "of any great significance" and its repeal would not effect President Nixon's handling of the war in indochina.

Agnew went to work for the Colorado Republican party today and even though he would not predict the outcome of the November election he said the voters know "where this country is at and where it is going."

Agnew made a brief stop in Hot Springs, Ark., on his way to Denver and in a speech to the National Sheriff's Association said alcohol "has won the approval of peoples and government" and that makes it different from marijuana. He asked for swift passage of legislation to end the nation's "collective national trip" on legal or illegal drugs ranging from diet pills to heroin.

An aide to the vice president said no trouble was expected from 20 antiwar protesters who planned to demonstrate tonight while Agnew addresses a $120-a-plate dinner at Curri-gan Exhibition Hall.

"It's difficult to assess the fall elections," Agnew said upon arriving in Colorado. "This is the first time a president has tried to bring about peace and prosperity concurrently. But I'm sure the people will make a fair analysis of where this country is at and where it is going."

He said the surprise move by pro-administration forces led by Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., to repeal the Tonkin Gulf Resolutionwould not effect the President's powers.

"I have never felt the resolution was of any great significance," Agnew said. "The powers of the President are clearly defined and attempts to usurp these powers by Senate doves can't help but have a harmful effect on our prestige everywhere."

Goodell—No Aid if War

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y., repeated Tuesday he "will not support President Nixon for re-election" if the United States is still involved militarily in Southeast Asia by 1972.

Goodell, in a speech before some 400 congressional student interns, emphasized his concern for "ending the war now and turning our attention to healing our fellow human beings."

The New York Republican, in a question-and-answer session with students, said he made that pledge in a television appearance in New York City several weeks ago and promised he would stand by it.

"I know the President is sincere in that he wants peace," Goodell said, "and he wants a way out of this war." But he maintained that Nixon was guilty of employing "the same fallacies of reasoning" as former President Johnson "when he talks about the domino theory and military victories..."

Asked why he was a Republican, if he disagreed with too many policies of the Nixon administration, Goodell said he "was born a Republican" and had reacted against the "big-city machines" controlled by Democrats and the southern Democratic coalition in Congress.

"I thought there was a greater potential for an unfettered approach in the Republican party," he said.

To enthusiastic applause from the students, Goodell reminded them if Republicans win control of the Senate in November "you will no longer have Sen. (John) Stennis (D-Miss.), as chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, or Sen. (Russell B.) Long, (D-La.) as chairman of the finance committee, or Sen. (James O.) Eastland (D-Miss.) as chairman of the judiciary committee." He also noted that Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., and Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., would be among those removed from committee chairmanships.

Night, Day Near For the Senate

WASHINGTN (UPI) —With the Senate tied up in six-week Cambodia debate during the day, a Southerner threatened for a while to tie it up nights too in a filibuster over school desegreatation.

The threat came from freshman Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., and it was enough Tuesday night to cause the Senate to drop its late-hour considration of a $4.5 billion aid to education bill.

Allen told Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield he would talk all night if necessary to prevent a vote on an attempt to remove from the bill House-passed provisions aimed at preserving freedom-of-choice and compulstory busing to achieve school desegregation.

Mansfield relented and allowed the Senate to adjourn. Allen promised not to stand in the way of a vote when the Senate turns tonight to the same issue.

The Senate started this week to set aside the Cambodia debate every day at 5 p.m. EDT in order to deal with other legislation which has jammed up during the long debate over foreign policy.

The measure would appropriate $4.5 billion for schools during the fiscal year starting july 1.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, leading the fight to knockout the antibusing and freedom - of - choice provisions, produced letters from both Robert H. Finch and Elliot Richardson opposing the amendments.

No More Zebras

BUFFALO (AP) — That "zebra" look which highway stripes used to acquire after a fresh painting is on the way out, according to the State Department of Transportation.

A new quick-drying superheated paint is cutting by a third the time it takes to stripe a highway, a department spokesman said, and it withstands the ravages of snowplows and studded tires for about a year.
